LONG SAULT – The meeting room at the South Stormont Township hall seemed to shrink as residents from across waterfront townships packed themselves into the arranged chairs, against the walls and throughout the room, wherever space allowed on the evening of Tues., Sept. 11. The atmosphere was tense with dismayed residents, eager to ask their questions and hear from invited guests, members of the International Lake Ontario - St. Lawrence River Board.

Cliff Steinberg, St. Lawrence River waterfront property owner and long-time advocate for communication between the interest groups, organized the evening after a summer of damaging low water levels. Concerns ranging from degraded tourism, endangered wetlands and animal habitats, waterfront erosion, shipping and recreational concerns were all acknowledged during the meeting. Unfortunately for the residents, short-term solutions were nowhere to be found.

Jamie Dickhout, alternate Canadian regulation representative, International Lake Ontario - St. Lawrence River Board, was the guest speaker of the evening. She kicked things off with a presentation on how flows are managed, current conditions and future expectations. Her presentation did little to ease concerns but it was Rob Caldwell, manager, Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Regulation Office, Environment and Climate Change Canada who came under fire during the evening. This was in part to the divide between desired outcomes for the meeting between the board and the residents. The former, wanting to field concerns and retreat to meetings to deliberate further and the latter demanding answers in the moment.

Steinberg later opened the floor to comments from stakeholders. With such low levels this year, concerns were heard about minimum and maximum water levels for the St. Lawrence. Steinberg said there were regulations for the shipping areas, yet no confirmation could be garnered for the recreational areas and shorelines. This is in contrast to the strict regulations for the levels on Lake Ontario which may only be regulated up and down by two centimetres.

It was difficult for many in the room not to protest the difference and while speaking

Revealing lost history

The waters of the Hoople's Creek continue to recede as water levels are lowered by the International Joint Commission seeking to lower the water level on Lake Ontario by increasing the water flow at the Moses-Saunders Dam located near Cornwall. A photo taken on Sun., Sept. 16 shows an "old stone fence on the farm that was east of Hoople's Creek, in the first concession, near Wales" which was identified by local historian and past president of the Lost Villages Historical Society Jim Brownell of Long Sault.

with the Chesterville Record after the meeting Caldwell aimed to explain. "The main objective of Plan 2014 is to better mimic outflows over the long-term. So, ultimately the only way that we can do that is by increasing the range of water levels that we see; not only on Lake Ontario but also on Lake St. Lawrence," he said.

Caldwell continued that by mimicking nature it "thereby restores 53,000 hectares of wetlands in the Lake Ontario, Thousand Islands reach of the St. Lawrence River. So basically above Iroquois Dam there are 53,000 hectares of wetlands and they have been largely impacted. The biodiversity in those wetlands has been reduced by irregularity of the outflows here at the Moses-Saunders Dam."

For the scientists who studied the effects over 16 years to establish Plan 2014, Caldwell said they, "worked within certain parameters in establishing what wetlands would be sensitive to changes in the regulation plan. Lake St. Lawrence notwithstanding; obviously they realized that, but the size of the wetlands here are somewhat limited versus the size of the wetlands that we are talking about around, say, Prince Edward County, certainly along the south shoreline near Sackets Harbour, these sorts of huge wetlands."

While he was not involved in that part of the project, he did say, "maybe they had to focus on the best bang for the ecosystem-buck; where we can provide the fastest or biggest benefits to biodiversity in changes to the regulations."

All of this contributes to the news that residents received during the evening that closing the Moses-Saunders Dam to raise water levels, is not an option under the regulations.

The solution for this year, members of the board told the crowd, is a three day raise on the water levels to allow boaters and marinas to get the machines out and stored for the winter.

This however, was deemed by the crowd as far less time than necessary for the work required.

Tim Robins, St. Lawrence Parks Commission, manager, recreation and leisure attractions, explained, "The issue is that the water level is so low that it is hard to get the boats even from the dock to the ramp to getting them out of the water. There's 100 boats that generally takes about three weeks to [take out] and we are trying to jam in all of these boats in that period of time. So, it is next to impossible."

With so many issues to consider from the meeting, the board members assured attendees that they would bring the issues to the table. Jean Aubry-Morin, St. Lawrence Seaway Management Corporation said the dialogue from the evening would be continued in two ways. The first is better communication from the board with the public and better ways for the public to address their concerns with the board. As well as continuing work from the Great Lakes - St. Lawrence River Adaptive Management Committee; designed to monitor and continually assess the regulations of water levels and flows. While answers were expected during the meeting, it is time that will tell the residents if their concerns have been addressed.

The overwhelming smell that fills the streets of North Dundas from Parmalat has been a pain in locals' nostrils for too long. One question directed at deputy mayor candidate Brad Pinch and Fraser simply asked what their plan is to try again and improve Dundas County's air quality.

Fraser who has worked at Parmalat for many years, addressed that residents have had to put up with the odour for far too long but assures the community, that efforts are being made to fix the problem.

"I am aware of what's going on, I have spoken to management about it, I've worked back where the smell starts from and I can say, first hand, the efforts that are going on is astounding," he said. "The number of people that are back there working, the number of dollars being spent, I can't believe there's that many engineers in Ontario driving around, measuring and figuring out better ways to deal with that odour."

Pinch decided to cut right to the chase and express that Parmalat has had a "free ride" for too long and that the technologies that they are using are not going to improve the air quality in North Dundas.

"I've learned a couple of things while doing a little bit of research. One is that the technology that they're currently boasting about, that's going to do everything in fact is not going to support the smell and take it away," he said. "There are too many other elements that are out there. There is new technology out there that is being used by other plants worldwide in Montreal, and even in St. Albert, that reduce and remove the stench, which is really important to us."

Opening statements

Tony Fraser's opening statement talked about his many contributions to the community including attending fundraisers, business milestones and supporting local sports. Glover photo

On Wed., Oct. 17, marijuana will officially be legalized across the country and while some residents are in agreement of this, some parents in the area think that this will only cause more problems in the community. One concerned parent directed a question towards Boyce and Fraser, asking what will be in place involving law enforcement to help ease residents into the reality of legalization.

Fraser made his feelings very clear about the pending legalization, stating that the police won't be sufficient and that they will need municipal support during the transitional period.

"I don't know what measures this municipality will take but this will become law and it will become legalized," he said. "The policing will not be sufficient to deal with the things that they are speaking of, that they don't have to deal with. So, what are we going to do to deal with it? We're going to have to be supportive of the policing that we have in our area."

Boyce stated that not only will the township be struggling with this issue, but the whole country will. However, Boyce is interested in waiting the first year out and seeing what will unfold in that time.

"It's not enough time, they're not giving us enough resources, we don't know what's going on and we haven't gotten the information," he said. "Eventually, we should go to the public to see what the public thinks. I do kind of like the stand that the town of Perth is taking, waiting the first year and seeing what unfolds and see what happens. I don't think we should rush into it, we really need to take a close look at that."

A question directed at new councillor candidates, Theresa Bergeron and Gary Annabelle asked what they felt are the biggest issues the council needs to address as newcomers.

Bergeron stated that one of the bigger issues is how much taxes each resident pays and that they don't realize where most of the budget goes.

"When I went around four years ago, people were concerned about how much taxes they pay, and what they don't realize is about 40 per cent of the budget is for roads," she said. "And of our population, only 4,000 households have to support all those roads. So, in order to reduce taxes from every person we need to attract more people to the township."

Annabelle stated a number of different issues within the area, including the issues of side-road trimmings and increased taxes.

"Rurally, a lot of people are quite content with side-road trimmings. Some side roads have weeds, trees and brush that you can't see until you pull out onto the road," he said. "Taxes are another thing. Nobody like taxes. When I lived in my house before the house I live in now, I was paying up to about $10,000 a year in property taxes and to me, that's just too much."

The next municipal election debate will be held Mon., Sept. 24 at the Royal Canadian Legion Chesterville Branch 434.

Putting party before the people

Mr. McDonell,

I called your office as a constituent earlier this week to express my absolute dismay at Premier Ford's intentions to invoke the notwithstanding clause in order to limit the size of Toronto city council for no reason, seemingly, other than to satisfy a personal vendetta against an elected body that had no time for him or his brother's inappropriate behaviour and antics.

I see from yesterday's (Sept. 12) Hansard record that, despite receiving several calls from constituents (as your office staff informed me when I called) that you still voted to move forward with this ludicrous plan.

As I'm sure you can attest, in the life of an elected official, there are hardly enough hours in a day to get done all you need to get done. You have personal, professional and political commitments that you need to meet. I ask you, Sir, what would happen to your ability to represent your constituents if your riding suddenly doubled? Trebled? Though it receives the least amount of public attention, I think it could easily be argued that municipal politics are the politics that affect people's day-to-day life more than any other; from schools, to fire response, to civic services, every aspect of our lives is touched by the municipal government. Operations in Stormont, Dundas and South Glengarry don't compare in complexity to Toronto, that has to maintain its own police force, support almost three-million people, and is a major economic hub for the country. In order to satisfy his own hurt feelings, Doug Ford is going to severely limit the ability of the people of Toronto to speak with their elected municipal officials by limiting their number. And you've supported this decision. The lives of Ontarians will be negatively impacted by this action, and you've contributed to that.

The inclusion of the notwithstanding clause in the Charter was originally intended to prevent the judiciary from legalizing certain actions (like hate speech and child pornography) even in light of opposition from the people. In effect, what Ford did yesterday (Sept. 12), that you supported, was set the scene for the use of the clause to go against the very purpose it was intended to protect; by invoking it, you'll be stifling the voice of the people by limiting their elected representatives.

I'd like to suggest, Sir, that you look at what is currently happening in the States. In response to an authoritarian, right-wing, populace movement, the opposition groups are gaining in numbers and volume. To counter actions that are viewed as detrimental to the people, more and more individuals, who have never considered running for political office before, are now stepping into the ring and saying 'no more'. It's taken two years, but I hope the mid-term elections in November will send a clear message to those in power that self-serving actions will no longer be tolerated. If Ford continues on this path, of using the government to satisfy his own personal aims, I wouldn't be surprised if the same happens in the province; and it's not going to take two years to reach a boiling point, since we've been watching what happens when bullies are allowed to govern since 2016.

I would like to hear directly from you, Sir, why, in the face of your constituent's wishes, you voted in support of moving forward with limiting the size of Toronto's city council. I'd respectfully ask that you please call me at your convenience so we can discuss why you've put party before the people.

Thank you,
Elise Guest, Chesterville

Miracle in Morrisburg

I got over to Upper Canada Playhouse Saturday night, the miracle in a former Morrisburg toothbrush factory now celebrating its 35th season, this time to take in a Norm Foster offering with an impossibly long title: The Great Kooshog Lake Hollis McCauley Fishing Derby. Even the box office staff refers to it simply as "Fishing Derby".

I've been around long enough that I can remember when UCP made its debut in a leaky tent before graduating to the vacant factory. Then came a long process of rehabilitation and expansion leading up to the professional venue in place for the past several years.

I'm proud to say that I was part of the process for two, three-year terms and that my name is on the wall as a former UCP board member. I won't dwell on that because I have mentioned it half a dozen times in this space before. That's a joke... I mentioned it once.

I say "miracle" because who would have ever thought a professional theatre company could exist in a toothbrush factory in a theatrically backwater town partly inundated by St. Lawrence Seaway construction, presenting appealing shows interpreted by some of the country's best actors... and still be getting capacity houses 35 years later.

SNC employs local summer students

FINCH – With support from federal and provincial funding agencies, South Nation Conservation (SNC) continues to lead the way in local summer student employment. In total, eight students were employed by the Conservation Authority this summer.

"We're proud to be giving talented students an opportunity to work in their field of study," says SNC communications lead, John Mesman.

From working in the forest, to conducting environmental monitoring or delivering education programs, students become familiar with the inner-workings of a non-profit organization while getting exposed to a variety of career opportunities and experiences.

"The best part of my summer was spent teaching kids how to fish at our SNC Youth Fish Camps," said Samantha DeVries, currently studying elementary education at Bishop's University in Sherbrooke, Québec.

Tavish MacLeod, a stewardship student, said that he "loved being outside and getting his hands dirty." MacLeod is studying the environmental technician program at St. Lawrence College in Cornwall.

This year's summer students were Britney Bourdages, Meagan Casalino, Samantha DeVries, Alicia Howse, Tavish MacLeod, Raymond Co and Alexa Ouellette. Collectively they are from Alexandria, Carleton Place, Finch, Ingleside, Lunenburg, Ottawa, Scarborough and Rockland.

"We look forward to hiring young and enthusiastic students every summer," says Mesman. "They are our future generation of leaders and will hopefully go on to become good environmental stewards."

It sounds like the plot of a Norm Foster comedy... maybe it will be that someday the way Norm, Canada's most prolific if under-recognized playwright, cranks them out: The Toothbrush Factory Theatre Tale.

I've probably bragged in this space before, about having coffee with Norm one time at the Morrisburg Tim's and asking why he thought he remains relatively under-produced in Canada's so-called mainstream English-language theatre community with headquarters in Toronto, Ottawa and Vancouver. He suggested the likely reason is that he's too populist, too straightforward in dissecting the human condition, in elaborating on the battle of the sexes from a Canadian perspective.

While Norm's many shows can have sad and serious moments, he's mainly going for laughs; there are no dark, unfathomable scenes in a Foster play leaving audiences wracking their brains for meaning, the kind of stuff that has mainstream producers and directors licking their lips in anticipation.

Thousands of fans can't be wrong and Norm's recognition is growing across Canada, the U.S. and increasingly around the world. Over the past few years, he's been honoured with creation of a festival in his name in St. Catharines, the key to that city, lifetime membership in the Playwrights Guild of Canada, and has been named an Officer of the Order of Canada.

Running at UCP through Sept. 30, Fishing Derby is stuffed with all of the usual Foster ingredients: Clashing cultures, this time country versus city; cumbersome budding love; sage old-timer advice; a simple dilemma; and a happy resolution. Yes, Norm can be as formulaic as the next playwright, but it's all in the sharp and clever language which he wields with much more dexterity than most.

The locals have been trying for 23 years to catch a giant catfish they've nicknamed Hollis McCauley because it looks exactly like a resident of that name and, with nothing else to do until his car is repaired, James plunges into the derby. Using modern fishing gadgetry, he actually snags the beast, disappointing the locals who like the idea of catching the fish more than actually accomplishing that feat. James redeems himself and helps win the girl by donating the startling $92,000 purse to a local woman in need.

Playing the star-crossed lovers are real-life star-crossed lovers Warren Bain as the stranded uptight banker James, and Katie Ryerson as Melanie, a city transplant to Kooshog Lake who helps James relax and enjoy the moment. Bain – a St. Lawrence Shakespeare Festival favourite – and Ryerson are engaged to be married which must have facilitated the sexy banter as James and Melanie.

Playing crotchety derby organizer Kirk Douglas – yes, they have a lot of fun with the name – is crotchety Marshall Button, former UCP artistic director best known for his recurring role as Lucien, the insightful New Brunswick factory worker; the tart-tongued Linda Goranson plays tart-tongued Sienna, while playhouse permanent fixture AnnaMarie Lea is Rhonda who's more interested in landing James than the big fish.

All in all, Fishing Derby is a net-full of fun at every level, deserving of the standing ovation it received from Saturday's audience. The hit show proves once again that few playwrights understand their audience members the way Norm Foster does. I'm sure it helps that they're his peers.

Back to school activities

With the first few weeks over, the weeks to come are packed full of fun events and opportunities. The Junior and Senior Girls' basketball teams had their first tryout last Wed., Sept. 12. The Senior Boys' volleyball team also had tryouts on Wednesday, as well as Thursday last week. Junior Boys' volleyball were the first team to begin tryouts, with the first one on Tues., Sept. 11, and another on Thurs., Sept. 13. Golf also began last week, with a meeting held last Wednesday, in preparation for their tournament, which took place yesterday, Tues., Sept. 18. Congratulations to all of the golfers!

North Dundas' first spirit day is to be held on this Fri., Sept. 21. It's house colour day, and students can find out which colour their grade is by posters in the hallways, or on our Instagram page; nddhs_sc1819. Students and parents can follow the account to see upcoming events, or pictures of activities we had.

Students received their pictures on Thursday. If you want retakes or you missed the original photo day, retake day is on Fri., Oct. 12.

Finally, North Dundas is hosting a Terry Fox Walk on Thursday of next week (Sept. 27). It is for an important cause, so we ask all students to grab a pledge form at lunch time. A table will be set up at Grade 9-12 lunch, as well as 7-8 lunch. There is a minimum pledge of $10 to participate in the walk. We are looking forward to seeing all of the students and staff walking for a good cause.

Married and in practice together

WINCHESTER – After only six months in practice together at Winchester’s Community Care Centre, married medical duo Dr. Joseph Phillips and Dr. Elise Antoniak have racked up approximately 500 patients and hope to grow that number in the coming new year, up to 1,000 they said.

“We’re a husband and wife team sharing a practice,” said Phillips. “We opened our practice about six months ago on April 1.

In starting a practice, the duo don’t want to steal business from other doctors, but try to help people in North Dundas who do not have family doctors or who’s family doctors are too far away to make a trip.

“We’re trying to focus on people in the area who do not have a family doctor or have to travel far to see their family doctors,” said Phillips. “That’s a net benefit to the community. If you’re taking patients that already have family doctors, it’s not necessarily a net benefit versus if there’s people out there who don’t have their own doctor or can’t see their doctor because they’re an hour away; it’s not an ideal situation, especially if you get older.”

A big goal of Phillips and Antoniak’s practice is to help patients get off long-term drugs in exchange for a healthier lifestyle.

“One thing that we’re really working on is trying to help people come off of long term, unnecessary medications,” said Phillips.

“An example might be working on lifestyle and diet to reduce their blood pressure or diabetes medications. There are guidelines on what medications you should be on but if we can accomplish that through lifestyle then we prefer that.”

Dr. Joseph Phillips (left) and Dr. Elise Antoniak opened their practice April 1 at Winchester’s Community Care Centre. The couple hope to reach close to 1,000 patients in the coming new year.

Phillips and Antoniak also want to fix a growing problem in Ontario before it becomes a serious problem in our community.

“Another thing, chronic pain medications and all the issues with addiction and overdosing in the community, we’re looking to help people come off of those medications,” said Phillips.

“Overdosing is a huge problem in Canada in general and in Ontario. I don’t see it being a huge issue at the Winchester Hospital but I know that Cornwall sees it a lot and they’re still in our general area. We want to prevent it before it becomes a problem.”

While Phillips grew up on the east coast and Antoniak grew up in Ottawa, the pair met in medical school while they both completed their electives at the Winchester District Memorial Hospital.

“After that, we did about two years of locuming in Nunavut, Iqaluit the Northwest Territories. We filled in for other doctors and worked in communities that do not have permanent family doctors. We worked in really small towns up there where everything is fly in and fly out,” said Phillips

The new practice has seen great success since they opened April 1 and both Phillips and Antoniak hope to continue building with more patients in the coming year.

“We’re always going to be trying to build our practice up year and more in the coming years,” said Phillips. “Hopefully next year we’ll be able to accumulate more patients.”

Douglas seeking a second term

Carolyn Thompson Goddard
Record Correspondent

NORTH STORMONT – North Stormont councillor and long-time resident Randy Douglas filed his nomination papers for the position of councillor in that municipality on July 11. Douglas views the municipal council as a body which has a role in linking “the various communities to the municipality and help understand each other.”

In a recent interview with the Chesterville Record, Douglas mentions his commitment to the municipality, almost 30 years as a community volunteer and experience this past term on council as reasons for seeking re-election. He noted how he strongly believes that the incoming mayor and deputy-mayor “will need high engagement and understanding of the issues from other councillors and that’s why I’m asking for strong voter support.” He commented how “the experience of Deputy Mayor McGimpsey and leadership of Mayor Fife will be missed and he hopes to be part of a council which will continue the work begun four years ago.”

Douglas continued he would bring to the council table an experienced voice which will assist in facing issues such as the preservation of the rural life-style, the need for the new council to fill and “establish the framework” of the CAO position and the “green energy wind turbine projects coming to North Stormont.”

In a recent email to the paper, Douglas commented how “council had to deal with cards dealt” on the issue of the wind turbine projects and “neither personally nor council as a whole supported” this issue, there was a requirement for council and administration to ensure “we had solid agreements with EDP” in several areas including funding and road user agreements.

As the candidate looks to the future of North Stormont he is confident this rural municipality will continue to be “A Good Place to Grow”.

Canadian veterans of American Civil War remembered

Carolyn Thompson Goddard
Record Correspondent

LONG SAULT – The weather cooperated with the Civil War Re-enactment Weekend held Sept. 7 to 9 at the Lost Villages Museum in South Stormont with visitors learning about an often overlooked part of local and Canadian history.

The American Civil War stirs up memories of battles with over 625,000 combatants killed, wounded or captured during bloody battles fought on farmers' fields and in the populated areas of the United States of America. What many Canadians don't realize is over 40,000 people living in British North America (which became Canada in 1867) joined either the Confederate or Union Forces. There were hundreds of local inhabitants which joined up to serve in this foreign war for reasons which ranged from political views, family affiliations, seeking adventure, to the need for the money offered for their services.

Re-enactors from the Grays and Blues of Montreal (GBM) and several other re-enactment regiments were at the Lost Villages Museum over the weekend and provided visitors with an opportunity to learn about the life of a soldier in the conflict, see demonstrations of 1860's fire power and witness an afternoon ceremony of remembrance on Sat., Sept. 8.

The ceremony included remarks from

Stormont Dundas and South Glengarry MP, Guy Lauzon and MPP, Jim McDonnell, who both remarked on the importance of ensuring the history of Canadian participation in this foreign conflict is provided for future generations. South Stormont Mayor Jim Bancroft recognized the tireless work of both the Grays and Blues and the Lost Villages Historical Society in promoting the history of Canadian involvement in the American Civil War.

Andre Martell, president of Martell Monuments of Vankleek Hill was presented with an antique Civil War era musket in recognition and gratitude for his dedication and tireless efforts in the realization of this monument to Canadians who served in the American Civil War. Presenting him with the award were Stewart Irvine and Alfred Calver, both vice presidents of the GBM.

During the ceremony McLachlan, thanked the LVHS and the Municipality of South Stormont for their work in having the only Canadian memorial to those Canadians who served in the American Civil War erected at Ault Park. He commented how it was important to remember the Canadians who served in the American Civil War as well as remembering the Civil War re-enactors who had passed away since last year's initial dedication.

Near the memorial for the Canadians who served in the American Civil War is a tombstone which "once stood over the gravesite" of Sgt. George Gregg, who had served during the conflict, in Fulton New York. The grave marker was donated to the organization by Gregg's great-grandson, Bernard Breen of Kingston and unveiled at the site on July 1.

There are many untold and long-forgotten stories in Canadian history which are beginning to be told and the role of Canadians who fought in the American Civil War is just one part of a heritage being promoted by historical organizations across this country.

Getting the vintage fix at Kelly's

MORRISBURG — Kelly McHaffie, life-long resident of South Dundas and her fiance Tom Dale, held the grand opening of Kelly's Vintage Goodies and More in Morrisburg on Sat., Sept. 15. The store which was a regular at the flea market now has a permanent home along Hwy. 2.

During the big day, dignitaries were present to send along their well-wishes to McHaffie and Dale on this new venture. SDSG MP Guy Lauzon remarked on small businesses being the "cornerstone of the Canadian economy" and encouraged everyone to support McHaffie and other such independent, small businesses in the area.

South Dundas Mayor Evonne Deleгарde echoed Lauzon's comments while South Dundas Chamber of Commerce president Tom Morrow and vice president

Donnie Bowes wished McHaffie the best of luck. "From the look of the crowd and the look of the product [McHaffie] is going to be here for a long time," said Morrow.

For the opening, McHaffie explained that 10 per cent of the profits would be donated to the Dundas County Hospice as well as all of the profits from the silent auction. Lynn Gee of the organization was onsite and said, "we thank [McHaffie] from the bottom of our hearts."

For McHaffie and Dale, this is their passion she explained. In her words, "he is the picker and I am the seller." McHaffie pours over research and catalogues everything. Looks are deceiving when it comes to the charming and slightly cluttered arrangements. To the outsider it is an eclectic collection, to McHaffie, the researched and hand picked antiques are just waiting for their perfect home. The store only holds 20 per cent of McHaffie's total collection and will be open in addition to the online Facebook auctions each week.

"Mostly my passion is when people walk into the store and [items] bring back memories to them," said McHaffie. After growing up involved in the flea market due to her parents and aunt and uncle, McHaffie has developed a real passion for the work. "It's been in my blood since I was young. I've always been a people person," she said.

With so much to offer, the store will be open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and will slow down after Christmas. The online auction will also feature roughly 100 items a week and can be found on Facebook by searching Kelly's Auction of Vintage Goodies and More.

Fantastic Fall Fair at Upper Canada Village

Carolyn Thompson Goddard
Record Correspondent

SOUTH DUNDAS – The humid weather didn't keep over 4,000 people from attending the Upper Canada Village Fall Fair over the two-day event held on Sept. 15 and 16. Phil Hosick who works at the Village as an assistant gardener, was pleased with the turnout when the Chesterville Record met with him inside the Agricultural Society tent in the fairgrounds.

Hosick mentioned the fair, which he recalls has always been a part of the fall experience at the Village, is designed to provide visitors with an opportunity to see how pioneers in the area showcased their animal husbandry, artistic, handicraft and gardening skills.

He explained the fair seeks to preserve the flavour of the 1860's with heritage vegetable competitions, tinsmith and woodcraft entries, women's handicrafts as well as baking, canning and preserving all authentic to the 1860's. An example of this attention to detail is in the painting section where the art has to be created using period materials such as oil, watercolour as well as pen and ink with subject and framing as close to the era as possible.

Village head gardener Brian Henderson, who with Hosick and assistant gardener Phil Wayne, spent months planning the 2018 fair, commenting how they "started back in May planting the heirloom gardens" with flowers which would be blooming in the fall. Some of the varieties included globe amaranth, dusty miller, toothache plant and sage. In June, the team began planning the beautiful floral displays found in the Agricultural Society tent with other people planning entertainment such as the beard contest and magic show. The work intensified as the date drew nearer with staff preparing displays and organizing details to ensure the success of the event.

Henderson mentioned Brent Christie who organized the cattle and horse show using animals from the Village and Bev

Patterson who brought in his own chickens, birds, duck and geese for exhibition at the event and thanked the many people who worked to make the 2018 UCV Fall Fair both an educational and enjoyable event.

Iroquois' wiggin' out

IROQUOIS – Iroquois' expansion efforts with new businesses and possibilities, Marilyne Kelly found a golden opportunity to expand her business, Marilyne's Wigs n' Things, from a booth in the Morrisburg flea market to the Iroquois Plaza.

"I have a booth at the McHaffie's Flea Market that's open Sundays," said Kelly. "This location opened up and I just wanted a place where it was private. Where people could come and try on wigs without judgement."

Kelly opened in the Iroquois location Wed., Sept. 5 and held the official grand opening Fri., Sept 14. With new businesses coming to the small town, including a C-Store, a gas station and even a Tim Hortons, Kelly thought it was the perfect time to jump on the bandwagon as well.

"I find that there is so much potential in Iroquois," said Kelly. "We've moved to Iroquois, our home is in Iroquois now and, to me, it has so much potential for growth."

South Dundas Mayor Evonne Delegarde was in attendance at the grand opening to give her blessing to the opening of Kelly's wig shop.

"It's always a pleasure to be attending one of these occasions," said Delegarde.

"We want to welcome [Kelly] to the South Dundas business community. I want to welcome [her] to the Iroquois Plaza and on behalf of council and the staff and the residents of South Dundas, we want to wish [her] all the best."

Marilyne's Wigs n' Things is a business where people can come and buy wigs for a number of reasons according to Kelly.

"We offer customers wigs for fun, fashion and/or medical issues," she said. "I have extensions, hair pieces,

I have fancy little colour strands. I also do hair cuts, colours and perms because I've had a big clientele for many years."

House of Lazarus' Live Twilight Auction breaks fundraising record

MOUNTAIN — The sun was shining, the barbecue was lit, and the auctioneer was at the podium as House of Lazarus (HOL) broke its annual fundraising record.

The 2018 Live Twilight Auction was held at the Mountain-based organization Fri., Sept. 7, raising $7,413 for the local food bank and outreach mission. Included in that total is a contribution from RBC Kemptville for $1,000, while the remainder came from auction sales and the barbecue chicken dinner.

"Once again, it's the generous contributions from our community and the many volunteers who donated their time and energy that made this event such a success," HOL executive director, Cathy Ashby said.

members of RBC Kemptville dropped by the mission days ahead of the event to volunteer their time in preparation. As well, several members of the Mountain and District Lions Club were on hand to man the barbecue during the Friday night fundraiser.

In addition to the items

HOL sorters had been storing from the mission's Drop Off Depot over the past six months, many community members delivered items to House of Lazarus specifically for the auction, including several boxes of collectibles, as well as a specially-made stained glass window.

Employees and family of RBC Kemptville donated their time the evening of Tues., Sept. 4 in preparation for House of Lazarus' annual Live Twilight Auction. Upper Canada Region Adventure Map named "one of the best of the best" marketing pieces in Canada

MORRISBURG – The Upper Canada Region Adventure Map has received national recognition from the Economic Developers Association of Canada at their national marketing awards ceremony held in Fredericton, NB on Sept. 11.

A partnership project between the Municipality of South Dundas and Township of South Stormont, the Upper Canada Region Adventure Map was launched in mid-May. It was designed by Annie Dalton Design Network and printed by Motion Creative Printing.

"The Municipality of South Dundas and the Township of South Stormont are excited to receive such a highly competitive award that validates the superior level of tourism products offered in our region," says South Dundas Mayor, Evonne Deleгарde.

The Upper Canada Region Adventure Map was honoured with a special award for sustainability, which acknowledges an outstanding submission that goes above the requirement for marketing standards. In the interest of sustainability and the environment, the Upper Canada Region Adventure Map was printed using recycled paper and vegetable-based ink to mitigate the environmental impacts of large quantity printed material. This is the first time either the Municipality of South Dundas or the Township of South Stormont have received such an award.

"The Sustainability Award truly demonstrates our commitment to being environmentally conscious, while at the same time producing quality tourism marketing pieces that attract visitors to our region," adds South Stormont Mayor, Jim Bancroft.

Appreciating customers after 30 years

After working 30 years within the community of Chesterville, Marty (left) and Gary Derk of Derks Elevator threw a customer appreciation day Thurs., Sept. 13. According to Marty, approximately 100 customers were invited to the event and they will be given 10 per cent off of their next purchase of either roasted soybeans or soybean milk.

Pioneer Day: something's missing

Kory Glover
Villager Staff

VERNON – Pioneer Day was supposed to be the big grand re-opening of the Osgoode Township Museum in Vernon Sat., Sept. 15 but unfortunately, not everything went according to plan.

"We usually have Pioneer Day in July but the City of Ottawa was putting in a new roof on the museum and so it was closed," said museum board member and past chair of the South Nation Conservation Doug Thompson. "They said it would be finished at the end of August but they ran into a problem. They put the roof on and they forgot to put a steel beam in place. So we can't go inside the museum."

Despite the huge setback, the board decided to go ahead with the event with live musical entertainment, a kids bouncy castle and the Agricultural Museum still open in the back barn that displayed farming equipment from decades ago.

"We decided to go ahead with the event," said Thompson. "We still have a kids area, a catapult display, we have some antique cars on display and artifacts on display in the Agricultural Museum."

Thompson said that he predicts the roof will be fixed indefinitely by the end of September.

"The museum should be back up and running by the end of the month, it shouldn't take them that long to fix the problem," he said. "It's a shame that people weren't able to see all the displays inside the museum today but I think there's still enough here to keep people entertained."

Exploring agricultural history

Jacqueline Bailey (centre) explored the Agricultural Museum with her children Zach and Stella. Bailey was one of the people put in charge of the museum's garden centre. She said that the drought hurt the garden a little over the summer but all-in-all, they still had a decent harvest.

Bringing back an old tradition

From the left, Doug Thompson gathered sponsors, grants and even funds from this past spring's Shroomfest to get Pioneer Day off the ground. Also pictured is Michael Daley, the local historian who's been part of Pioneer Day since the beginning.

Best wishes to a friend

Osgoode Township Museum board president Carol Dallas-Arbuckle (second, left) gave best wishes to Robin Cushnie (third, right), who worked as the museum's manager for over seven years. Cushnie will be moving to the Chesterville Historical Society for new opportunities. Also pictured left to right: Jason Harvey, Kelsey House and Jonah Ellens of the 100 Regiment of Foot Historical Society.

OPP request public's assistance in identifying suspicious vehicle

EMBRUN – On Wed., Sept. 12, at approximately 6:30 p.m., Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) - Russell County detachment - received a complaint about a suspicious vehicle driven by a male who approached children walking near the arena in Embrun.

This unknown male driving a red SUV slowed down on Blais Street and engaged in a conversation with the children. The driver rolled down the passenger window and told the two youths; "he was just on the phone with their parents and they wanted him to drop them off at their home."

Assistance is being sought from the public in helping to identify him, and/or the vehicle with the following description:

The male is described as: between 5'9" -6', caucasian with muscular build. Right arm full of tattoos, English speaking with no accent, medium length dark hair, long side burns, wearing a tank top - white and sunglasses on top of the head.

The vehicle is described as: Mazda CX5 - shiny red, brand new tires and dark tinted windows. At the top left of the back windshield it was written "keep calm" and something written in pink. Partial marker C##V ### or C##K ###.

Police invites parents to discuss and review the "Stranger Danger" tips with their children. If you or anyone you know are aware of this male's identity or have any further information about this incident, you are asked to contact the Russell County OPP at 613-443-4499 or OPP Communication Centre at 1-888-310-1122.

RHS Report

By Meghan Baines
Student Reporter

Welcome back T-Wolves!

A new semester has arrived with all the trimmings, including schedules and new locker combinations. The Russell Fair welcomed students as well, with a short and sweet weekend of rides, games and cotton candy. RHS kept up the tradition of a Friday visit for some grades, including the Grade 9s and their Grade 12 Link Crew leaders. It wouldn't be the first Friday of the school year without fresh curd and a free chocolate milk!

Mr. Zubyck hosted an athletic assembly to announce sports programs for 2018-2019 that students are welcome and encouraged to sign up for. First up are golf, basketball, soccer and volleyball. Thanks to the Metcalfe Golf Club for accommodating our tryouts and practices!

Accompanying school athletics are other arts and extracurriculars like the Glee Club, Pride Alliance, a Music club with no prerequisites - in other words, for absolute beginners - as well as Band for credit, GLS, and Personal Fitness on Mondays and Wednesdays after school. If you're interested, pick up a registration form in Guidance.

Student Council (AKA StuCo) wasted no time getting back in the groove of things, already planning a Spirit Week at the end of the month, including a pancake breakfast fundraiser on Monday for our Terry Fox Run on Wednesday! Here's wishing everybody at RHS a good school year - and, finally, a welcome to our new principal Mr. Onstein!

EMBRUN – People were so energized Sun., Sept. 16 to start the 38th annual Terry Fox Run that they immediately started dashing down the Fitness Trail connecting Embrun and Russell after registering... or maybe it was so hot outside, people just wanted to get a head start.

“It is very hot today,” said co-organizer, Donna Lafrance. “We’re supposed to start the run at 9:30 a.m. but I think everyone wants to get a head start on the run before it gets too hot to be outside.”

Participants could run the full 10 kilometre Fitness Trail from one end to the other until the heat got the best of them or they became exhausted.

“People can start at either end of the trail,” said Lafrance. “They can go back and forth if they want. We do it every year and we always have lots and lots of fun.”

Participation was lower than that of last year, with over 200 participants in the previous run while only 181 people attended this year’s run. Last year’s run raised $16,000 while this year’s run (not including the add-

“No matter how much we raised, every little bit counts,” said Lafrance.

“The Embrun-Russell communities have done a great job for another year.”

30 years later, going strong

EMBRUN – Embrun’s local Giant Tiger opened its doors for the first time back in 1988 and Sat., Sept. 15, they celebrated 30 years of being a big part of a small town.

“We’re celebrating 30 years of service in our community,” said Rod Fleming, the current owner of the Giant Tiger. “We opened our store back in 1988. Actually, around this time too, in September. So, I thought it was fitting to have a little fun with our customers and staff and to thank them for their service and loyalty throughout the years.”

The store was packed with huge line-ups throughout most of the day and customers were offered a couple of surprises out in the parking lot.

“The store’s been extra busy today from when we opened our doors this morning. We did a cake celebration with our customers,” said Fleming. “We also have a live band performing and giveaways to give out to customers including stickers and keychains [and] have The Hot Potato Company teaming up with us for a barbecue.”

According to Fleming, planning for the celebration started months ago because, being the 52nd store out of 240 stores, they have a standard to uphold.

“We started planning our anniversary about eight months ago, we realized it was our 30th year in the community,” he said. “There were no complications, there was a lot of planning and a lot of help from my staff and even some locals in the area.”

Fleming also presented a cheque of $1,000 to the local Good Neighbours Food Bank, which will be included in what The Hot Potato Company will donate after the event finished.

“Good Neighbours Food Bank cater to about 100 plus clients,” he said. “We have a great relationship with them because we donate all of our perishable goods to the food bank every week, 52 weeks in the year.”

Fleming was very pleased with the turnout of the celebration and he hopes to continue serving the community for another 30 years.

“I want to thank our customers for their loyalty and their trust in us to serve after all these years,” he said. “We made it to 30 years and here’s to another 30 years in the future.”

Trinkets and knick knacks

From the left, Jessica Lacelle, Rachel Seguin, Kristy Budgell and Emma Ahokas were in charge of the merchandise table consisting of plushies, shirts, stickers and even small snacks.
