Community Watch Program comes to Winchester

WINCHESTER – A Community Watch Program has been established in Winchester.

Resident Stephanie Seaver is the watch chairperson. She has been working on the community watch concept for the past few months.

"A few community members and I were concerned about the recent increase in crimes in the area (break and enter, assault and theft)."

She said, "I work in the security industry and I am pursuing a career in law enforcement – keeping people safe is just second nature to me. I thought a community watch program would be a great idea to help deter these recent crimes."

The group first got together to discuss the idea after the home invasion in the fall in Winchester.

Seaver met with Const. Tylor Copeland and the two found that the community responded well to the idea.

MOREWOOD – Since 2015 the Morewood Recreation Association (MRA) has provided families an opportunity to visit with friends and neighbours, enjoy a free cup of hot chocolate and then watch as the Christmas lights in Veterans Memorial View Park are turned on for the first time.

This past Fri., Nov. 27, the MRA held their annual tree lighting event at Veterans View Park located at the main intersection of this North Dundas community, with a bit of a difference this year due to the COVID-19 pandemic, and the necessity to ensure people's safety. The tree lighting ceremony was live streamed with people able to enjoy the lighting from the comfort of their homes. Katie Lesage, MRA acting president/vice president, in an email to The Chesterville Record, encouraged people "to visit our little park" either by car or walking to enjoy the holiday lights.

Lesage continued donations from the community provided financial support for a professional service to decorate and maintain the lights on the big tree. She explained how additional decorations and lights, some of which were donated by the township of North Dundas, were designed to help raise people's spirits during the COVID-19 pandemic.

MRA members decorated the remainder of the park with MRA member Brent Richard providing "little trees that the kids can hang hand-made ornaments on." Morewood RA member Glenn Smirle spearheaded a new campaign to have "Merry Christmas" signs erected at the entrances to the community as well as facilitating the hiring of the decorating service for set up and maintenance of the big tree lights.

Thompson appointed to Trillium Foundation

Carolyn Thompson Goddard approached in August of began. Thompson continued this year by the Ontario how on Oct. 1, he was CHESTERVILLE – It was recently announced that Doug Thompson, a former resident of Chesterville, with 31 years of municipal government experience in both Osgoode Township and the City of Ottawa, was appointed to the Champlain Grant Review Team of the Ontario Trillium Foundation (OTF). Thompson explained that he was approached in August of this year by the Ontario Ministry of Heritage, Sports, Tourism and Culture Industries that his "name had been put forward" for an appointment to the OTF grant review team.

After indicating his interest in the appointment, he was advised by provincial officials what his role would be, and after filling out forms, a very thorough vetting process began. Thompson continued how on Oct. 1, he was informed that his appointment to the OTF Champlain Grant Review Team was waiting for the signatures from the Honourable Doug Ford, premier of Ontario and Ontario Ministry of Heritage, Sports, Tourism and Culture Industries, the Honourable Lisa MacLeod before confirmation could be provided to him.

On Nov. 18, Thompson was advised of his confirmation to the OTF Champlain Grant Review Team which "reviews Grant Applications from groups, organizations, etc. from Cornwall to Petawawa." He continued, his online training will begin on Dec. 2 and be completed by Jan. 7, 2021, with meetings of the OTF Grant Review Team held following the intake of applications.

When asked about his appointment, Thompson replied he was pleased to serve the people of Eastern Ontario in this capacity. He continued how he has spent many years working with various community organizations, commenting how this appointment "will allow [him] to support community organizations."

Thompson explained the OTF "has been actively giving grants" to "groups and organizations that have applied for supportive funding" for 37 years, with over $108-million dollars

Community Watch Program

"We have a great group of volunteers who are ready to help us in keeping our great community of Winchester safe."

Copeland said, "I set up a presentation to the group regarding the program and they are set to begin patrolling, observing this week."

Seaver said she is hoping more people will want to volunteer. "We are looking for more volunteers to join our team. Volunteers can help us patrol the community either on foot or in their vehicles (always in pairs) and note any suspicious activity. We do have a process of reporting and working with Const. Tylor Copeland and the local OPP detachment. We will also be looking for volunteers to help us put community signs up and spread the word about our program," said Seaver.

People who want to volunteer with the program will have to have a background check courtesy of the OPP.

"I do a background check on the members, that meet with me, and if there are no issues, they can proceed," said Copeland.

"The OPP is proud to support the program, if community members take the initiative to run the program, we happily support it. We as police can't do it alone and need the public's assistance to keep our communities safe. The more eyes and ears we have out in the community does nothing but benefit all that live in our communities."

Seaver said volunteers are from Winchester, but if the program is successful she expects other communities will want to do one of their own.

She has little doubt that a Community Watch Program will make a difference in her community.

"The more eyes on our community, looking out for our neighbours and keeping Winchester safe, the better. I have a great feeling about this program; we have many fantastic people supporting it," she said.

Seaver is eager to add more members. If you are interested in joining the Winchester group or starting your own within another North Dundas Village, please reach out to Stephanie at stephanieseaver85@gmail.com.

In a press release, the SD&G, OPP provided some history about Community Watch programs.

The concept of Community Watch has existed for hundreds of years. Originally, townspeople would grab a lantern and walk various business districts to prevent crime. Their presence was obvious and served as a deterrent to those looking to commit crimes.

Over the years, the program evolved into neighbours meeting to discuss community issues, learning crime prevention techniques and sharing information. Neighbours working together to maintain an awareness of the activities that surrounds them and to report crime as it occurs.

The seeds for community mobilization, in support of crime prevention and community safety had gradually been planted.

The Community Watch Program has recently evolved into a variety of problem-oriented Watch programs that are community-driven and police supported. In partnership with local police, community members may learn how to make their homes and businesses less inviting for opportunistic criminals, how to participate in other crime prevention programs and how to recognize and safely report any suspicious activity in their respective neighbourhoods.

Though it is a community's needs which determine what or all programs that are required, it is the community-driven support that remains critical for program sustainability and overall success of each program implemented. There must also always be an adequate number of community volunteers that agree to form a Community Watch Committee.

Strong individual, community, and police support is what enables a Community Watch program to be effective and by working together, we may all work toward our OPP Vision of 'safe communities...a secure Ontario'.

6 MORE REASONS TO BUY LOCAL DURING THE HOLIDAYS

1. To discover hidden gems

Take time to explore the various shops, restaurants, venues and attractions in your region. Even if you've lived there for years, you'll likely be surprised by what you find. Discover a new craft beer, a temporary outdoor exhibition or a charming coffee shop. Your town has more to offer than you think.

2. To alleviate holiday stress

There's no need to venture into crowded shopping malls when everything you need to buy for a merry holiday season is available right around the corner. What's more, if you purchase all of your gifts from local boutiques, you won't have to worry about whether or not they'll arrive in time for Christmas.

3. To demonstrate solidarity

The COVID-19 pandemic took a major toll on the economy, and small businesses need your patronage now more than ever. Shopping locally is a simple way to support hard-working members of your community through this difficult time.

And since you receive high-quality goods and services in return, it's a win-win situation.

4. To save yourself time and money

The holiday season should be about spending time with friends and family, not fighting traffic or navigating winter driving conditions. When you stick to shops, restaurants and venues in the area, you avoid a lot of hassle and save plenty of money on gas.

5. To enjoy high-quality goods

Locally made products might be more expensive than mass-produced items, but they tend to be made better and more durable. This means you'll spend less in the long run. What's more, when you opt for goods made in your region, you can be confident that the employees worked in humane conditions for a fair wage.

6. To strengthen your sense of community

If you're a regular at your local shops and restaurants, you'll be able to routinely chat with the owners, employees and other customers you meet. This connection can foster a sense of belonging in your community. Plus, it's nice to see familiar faces during the holidays.

Recording our story for future generations

Carolyn Thompson Goddard Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE – Since late February of this year, a small but dedicated group of Chesterville & District Historical Society (CDHS) members have been collecting stories, taking photos and working to update our local history. Gail Parker, who has spearheaded this task, recently provided The Chesterville Record with a progress report on the project.

Parker explained during the 2020 CDHS annual general meeting held in February, that the go-ahead for this project was given by membership and a committee was formed. Members of the committee included Parker, Shelagh Derks, Corrie McCrae, Pauline Vankessel, Maryke DeJong, Ashley Harper, Carol Goddard and ex-officio member Caroline Roberts, society president.

When asked why the project was started, Parker commented how the last update of the community's history was in the late 1980s, and as 2020 was the 130th anniversary of the incorporation of Chesterville, this would be a wonderful way to commemorate this important milestone. The historical update will encompass the years 1989 to the present day, as the history before that time has been compiled in two earlier works.

She continued that the volume will include updates on churches, businesses, schools, community organizations, local personalities as well as farms in the Chesterville area. She explained the book will have two maps, one showing the businesses in the Village of Chesterville and the second, a map of the adjacent rural area. She continued the farm map will show the location of the farm's homestead, and as much as possible the story of the farm from its earliest beginnings.

Parker described this as the perfect project during the pandemic, as much of the work was done by phone and email. She described a "common sense" approach to the project, enlisting the assistance of local writers, photographers and editors to get the "job done". Many of the stories collected are first-hand accounts of life in the Chesterville area, with Parker commenting she has been amazed with the generosity of the people in providing information, as well as making donations to the Society in aid of the cost of producing this book.

While the publication date for the book has not yet been finalized, Parker explained it will be available at various locations in Chesterville. It has been a very time-consuming project as all committee members are taking "care to ensure a high-quality product for future generations." She described this as a "wonderful project" which provided the opportunity to meet with people, record in picture and word the stories of this community.

Feed Ontario 2020 Hunger Report

Feed Ontario is an umbrella organization that represents 130 food banks and 1,100 affiliate organizations in our province. Their annual report on the experience of hunger in our community was released on Mon., Nov 30.

Over 500,000 residents of Ontario visited a food bank at least once last year. And one-third of our clients

Although most food bank users are employed, their income is insufficient to provide for the ordinary necessities of life. Of course, the onset of COVID-19 has made their circumstances even more precarious, and there was a surge in demand for the services of food banks last spring, especially from families that were not already our clients.

The full Hunger Report is available at feedontario.ca. Over the past eight months, Community Food Share has worked tirelessly to source and stockpile food so that no one in our service area (Dundas & Stormont Counties) will go hungry. We have received increased support from individual residents, businesses, service organizations, churches, Feed Ontario, Food Banks Canada, and all levels of government.

This extraordinary generosity is inspiring.

But please, let us not forget that the problem of hunger in our community is the consequence of systemic inequality of economic opportunity. Even before the outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic, poverty and the resulting hunger and housing struggle for many of our neighbours was increasing. We have now shown that if the will exists to help, we can support those who need it.

Community Food Share thanks everyone who has donated to our mission, and we look forward to your continued support. Jim Wilson, Board Chair

Propolis for immune health

AJ Al-Rajab, PhD Record Staff

Bee propolis is in high demand due to its powerful antioxidant and antimicrobial properties. Propolis is a resinous wax-like material of varying colours (green to brown and reddish) obtained from bee hives. It is collected by the honey bee from tree buds and flora of various botanical sources. In the production of propolis, honeybees also use substances actively secreted by plants and plant wound exudates. Honeybees use propolis as cement to seal the cracks, strengthen the comb borders to protect it from hive invaders including microorganisms and extreme weather. Normally propolis is sticky, soft and pliable; however, when cooled at low temperature (near freezing), it becomes brittle and hard and remains brittle

Health benefits of propolis Propolis has been used in several countries as traditional remedy due to its diverse biological properties. The ancient Greeks, Romans, and Egyptians were aware of its healing properties and made extensive use of it as a form of medicine. In middle ages, it was used as mouth antiseptic and in the treatment of wounds by Arab physicians. Propolis was listed among the official drugs in London pharmacopoeia during the seventeenth century; furthermore, it was as popular as an antibacterial agent in Europe during seventeenth to twentieth centuries. Recently, propolis has gained popularity as an alternative medicine and used as one of the components of health foods. Because of its diverse biological properties, propolis is being widely used as an ingredient in medicines, personal products, food products and beverages.

Furthermore, propolis has extensively been studied and found to exhibit a wide range of biological activities, such as antimicrobial, antioxidant, immunomodulatory and cytotoxic activities. Among all the biological properties, was mostly propolis investigated for antimicrobial activity which depends on its chemical composition, as flavonoids, terpenoids and esters are considered to be mainly responsible. Propolis is available in the market in different forms such as liquid, oral spray, capsules,

However, people allergic to bee stings, or pregnant women should consult their physician before taking Bee propolis.

Chemical constitution of propolis

The chemical constituents in propolis have been found to be highly variable according to the geographical location, weather of collection and even between the hives of the same region; it mainly depends on the species of the plants grown in the close vicinity of the collection site, which honeybees used to collect the exudates.

Consequently, biological properties of propolis also vary with the type of vegetation around the collection sites.

A recent study published in Pakistan Journal of Zoology revealed that more than 300 compounds have been identified in propolis collected from different geographical locations. The propolis is composed of a complex mixture of resin (approximately 50 per cent), wax (30 per cent), essential oils (10 per cent), pollens (5 per cent) and about 5 per cent of other substances. The study "Chemical entitled Characterization and in-vitro Antimicrobial Screening of Ethanolic Extract of Propolis Collected from Jazan, Saudi Arabia" showed that the major components isolated from propolis include flavones, flavonoids, phenolic compounds, aliphatic and aromatic carboxylic acids and esters, aldehydes and alcohols, monoterpenes, diterpenes, triterpenes, sesquiterpenes and various hydrocarbon compounds. Flavonoids are plant compound that contain high levels of antioxidant activity. Phenolics are compounds produced by a plant, that protect the plant against stress. Both flavonoids and phenolics are found in most fruit and vegetables and have been attributed to many of the health benefits found in plant-based diets.

2020 marks the 130th anniversary of the incorporation of the village of Chesterville and the Chesterville & District Historical Society is marking this community milestone by holding a history hunt for all ages in the village.

By Carolyn Thompson Goddard

In keeping with COVID-19 precautions the history hunt is a selfdirected voyage of discovery about the town we call home. People are invited to travel through the streets either physically or in a virtual manner to find the answers to questions created by CDHS members and available at either the lobby of the Chesterville post office or the Bank of Nova Scotia. Once the contest closes and the filled in sheets are returned, Society bers will review the entries and once a winner is determined a "prize" will be presented.

As a member I am unable to participate, but in my heart and mind I often take a "self-directed voyage of discovery" about my hometown. Driving down King Street, where I grew up, it is the names of the families, who lived in the houses then I recall and the fun playing with neighbourhood children comes to mind. Many days were spent playing skip rope with Kathy Fulton and Karen Morarity in the Fulton laneway, with dusk games of hide and seek with neighbourhood children followed by a run to get home in time.

The Road Home

Passing by the former Laflamme Grocery building I remember the many times I bought groceries from a list Mom provided speaking with the Mr. Laflamme as he rung the order in. When I pop into Mike Dean's to pick up a bit of this and that I recall a young Mike Dean taking over the business when the Laflamme's retired and moving to its present location where once Coyne's Hardware, was a special place to visit, especially at Christmas.

Entering Chesterville from what I call the "park entrance" I recall the excitement in 1967 when the pool opened and the fun splashing around in has provided to generation of residents. Travelling down Main Street and across the bridge the growing season brings a multitude of flowers throughout the village with the Green Gang creating their beautification magic. The site of the former Flynn Hotel, located at the corner of Main and Queen's Street, is now a beautifully landscaped park with benches for people to sit and enjoy the activity going on in the town.

Travelling down Queen Street and passing first the former Anglican church with its slate roof, the only such roof in Chesterville, one comes to the Fairgrounds were the Chesterville Fair has been held, with the exception of 2020, since the 1930's. Not willing to leave the town behind just yet I circle back and re-enter Chesterville opposite the new Thompson subdivision and driving down College Street pass by Chesterville Public School with its large school yard which include the location of Chesterville High School, I remember many evenings watching people play baseball on the field there safe from any wandering ball behind the backstop.

Going down College to Victoria Street I drive by the yards along the street, remembering the times when fights would erupt on the way home and how Mr. Coleman, public school principal, would stop these fights with a shout from the driver's seat of his car. As I get closer to the junction of Main and Victoria the McCloskey Hotel, the Heritage Centre (built in 1867) and the former "new" town hall come into view. I remember being told this was the old town square despite only knowing the "newer" town square across the river where the majestic waterfront adorned by a gazebo and clock tower are located.

I enjoy driving around my hometown, recalling the memories associated with my childhood in Chesterville. It wasn't perfect but was perfectly wonderful to me.

WINCHESTER – A companion piece to this year's Parade of Lights in Winchester is the North Dundas Parade of Lights Trade and Vendor Fair at the Joel Steele Arena on Sat., Dec. 5.

Every year, Parade of Lights committee member Martha Malatesta organizes the vendor fair.

Malatesta has been organizing the fair since 2012.

Vendors at the fair have to be properly registered and screened to take part.

"A Covid-19 screening will be with each vendor," she wrote.

Admission is always free, however, donations to the Dundas County Food Bank are welcome whether monetary or in grocery goods. "We sell North Dundas Parade of Lights toques at the Vendor Fair. They are a great quality hat and have a fleece lining for only $10. I've had mine for nine years. The one dollar profit goes to the North Dundas Parade of Lights Committee."

High school volunteers assist vendors early in the morning by hauling craft and vendor goods upstairs, greeting guests at the door, accepting donations for the Food Bank, checking bathrooms and garbage, counting guests, decorating the hall with Christmas decorations, delivering receipts to vendors, keeping the music running and any other job that completed the morning of the event pops during an event with a variety of people.

> Malatesta explained, "Some years I convince my husband to play Christmas songs on his saxophone. This year he will be playing behind a clear barrier on the stage."

> Because of COVID there will be a limit of fifty people in the Joel Steele Community Hall at a time, as well as numerous other safety protocols in place. Please wear your masks.

> If you want to support local small business people in your community, please stop by the North Dundas Trade and Vendor Fair on Sat., Dec. 5 from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. at the Joel Steel Community Centre, above the Winchester Arena, located at 577 Main Street, Winchester. You may have to wait a few minutes to get in, but be assured it will be worth the wait.

Raising spirits

On behalf of the MRA, Lesage wished to thank the community participating and enjoying the lights at Veterans View Park before expressing a sincere thank you to Morewood and North Dundas businesses, the Chesterville Lions Club, the Morewood Presbyterian Church and community members for their donations, commenting "Its so greatly appreciated. We are truly blessed."

She also extended thanks to the North Dundas Fire Service (NDFS) Station No. 1 in Morewood "for all their support. They are a wonderful group of volunteers that not only protect us but offer up their time to volunteer and help/partner with MRA events" throughout the year. Lesage explained how NDFS Station No. 1 chief Ken Byers with Debbie Courneyea and Laurie Rae spearheaded the effort to revitalize the MRA in 2015 in an effort to "bring the community together" at a War below a statue of Capt.

time when the Morewood Branch of the SDG County Library system was facing closure.

She described the MRA community organization which strives to do "what's in the best interest of community." While the membership has changed over the years, the organization continues to provide "our town and our community" with year round activities such as BBQ's, children's movies and crafts, a Halloween party, winter carnival and the annual tree lighting. Lesage continued, in addition to these activities, an "earth day community clean-up day, planters at Veterans View, banners for spring/summer fall/winter" are some of the community projects the MRA is involved in.

marks 2021 centennial of the dedication of the Morewood Cenotaph on which are listed the names of residents killed in World War One, World War Two and acknowledges participants in the Korean Ernest Glasgow. When asked, Lesage commented a donation of $5,000 dollars was recently donated by the MRA to the Morewood Memorial Association to be used for projects associated with centennial commemorations. She explained how the MRA "decided that the cenotaph and what it commemorates is very important to Canada and to our town."

The Morewood Recreation Association volunteers, with the support of community organizations residents, continues to provide an opportunity to enjoy some fun and fellowship. For more information or to see what is happening next in Morewood, please visit their Facebook page.

Raising funds for Food Banks via the virtual Holiday Train Trek

Carolyn Thompson Goddard Record Staff

FINCH - The 2020 Canadian Pacific (CP) Holiday Train, which has travelled across Northern United States and Canada during the holiday season since 1999, will not be coming down the track this year due to the COVID-19 pandemic. CP has decided instead to "donate food banks communities along its network and host a virtual concert in lieu of its regular Holiday Train program, according to a press release from CP in September of this year.

A virtual concert is planned for Dec. 12 "via Facebook Live" to raise funds for "food banks across North America," with "performances by Serena Ryder, The Trews, JoJo Mason, Logan Staats and Kelly Prescott." CP president and chief executive officer Keith

Last year, Community Food Share received a cheque for $4,000 from Canadian Pacific to build awareness for hunger related issues. From left, MP Eric Duncan, Mayor Jim Wert, Community Food Share representative Jane and CP employee Pam.

Creel commented in the release that "It is our honour to continue to donate to communities across our network this year, even if the train itself will not run."

For the past five years, the village of Finch in North Stormont has been one of the stops where the Holiday Train has entertained hundreds of people, while raising food and funds for Community Food Share. In a recent press release from Community Food Share (CFS) team lead Jane Schoones, noted how the Holiday Train "has become a major source of revenue and food donations for Community Food Share" which has included "a generous donation of about $4,000 each year from CP Rail."

She continued how CFS "has been assured of another donation of approximately $4,000 from CP," with Finch Recreation confirming "they will be presenting a cheque for $1,000." Schoones noted how "Since the opening of the Finch Food Cupboard, North Stormont has been a strong supporter of CFS" and how "The charity is counting again on generous support from not only Stormont but also all of Dundas County."

With a $5,000 start up, CFS "is holding a matching drive in anticipation that the community will help provide nutritious food for their neighbours with another $5,000." For more information and links to the donation form, please visit the CFS website at www.communityfoodshare. ca/holiday-train or their Facebook page www.facebook.com/Comm unityFoodShareDS.b. Schoones asks people to "Please consider donating to support our efforts to provide healthy food to those in our community who need a helping hand."

South Stormont council convenes

Carolyn Thompson Goddard

Record Staff

LONG SAULT -There was a whirlwind of activity as South Stormont council held their Nov. 25 council meeting at the municipal building in Long Sault. During the meeting, a Key Information Report (KIR) was provided by Kevin Amelotte, with director of parks and recreation, on the Volunteer Appreciation Gala with a KIR presented by with David Ni, director of finance/treasurer on the financial implications of the COVID-19 pandemic on the municipality's financial situation.

Ni reported "the township has suffered a revenue reduction over COVID-19 and has incurred extra expenditures to address it." These included revenues in the Department of Parks and Recreation and the Finance Department. He noted "the township has received financial funding from the City of Cornwall, Province of Ontario and others to support its operation." In his summary, Ni mentioned how "by the date of Nov. 17, the township has experienced a revenue reduction of $518,557 compared to 2019 and has incurred $100,528 additional expenditures to address COVID-19. With support funding from governments and other parties" with "the financial status of township" remaining "stable with negative impact." Ni mentioned "the township took the opportunity to restructure the workplaces and procedures in order to provide a safer environment for the community and township staff." At the conclusion of the report, Deputy Mayor Dave Smith took the opportunity to thank the financial department for the work they have done throughout the pandemic.

The Volunteer Appreciation Gala (VAG) is a much-anticipated event in South Stormont; it is held in the spring of the year and serves to thank community volunteers for their work in the municipality in the previous year. Amelotte explained to council how the COVID-19 pandemic had necessitated the 2020 event, which would present the 2019 Volunteer of the Year and the 2019 Youth Volunteer of the Year awards to recipients be postponed. He continued how shortly following the postponement of the event, it was learned the 2019 Volunteer of the Year Award recipient had passed and the award was presented "posthumously during a virtual council meeting in May 2020, with the Youth Volunteer of the Year Award for 2019 to be presented "at the next VAG.

Amelotte noted how a recent discussion between staff and the chair of the VAG committee has resulted in the agreement "that it would not be realistic to properly organize a traditional gala event in 2021," with staff providing council at a future meeting, options for alternate arrangements of the VAG. He then suggested that the 2019 Youth Volunteer of the Year Award for 2019 be presented immediately prior to the Dec. 16 virtual council meeting."

South Stormont fire chief Gilles Crepeau and Shelby Martel, administrative assistant in the Fire and Rescue Department, provided council with an update on the Responsible Pet Ownership Program.

The KIR noted that although current bylaws "had served the community for numerous years," recently "ineffectiveness in addressing problems related to public safety and owner responsibility indicates the need for a redesign of the program." Martel explained she collected feed back from a variety of sources including information from the community via the municipal website and in consultation with other municipalities on this subject. Subjects researched by staff included "cat licensing, cat and dog limits, kennel regulations and operational kennel requirements," with the "Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw" being drafted after a "further review of the identified items, a public consultation process and recommendations to council." Anticipated in the bylaw are regulations for exotic animals, cats and dogs, animal rescues and shelters as well as prohibiting the feeding of feral cats, "unless part of a township approved Trap, Neuter, Release program."

Chief administrative officer Debi LucasSwitzer provided council with an Action Request (AR) concerning a Strategic Planning Process (SPP), commenting how the need for a SPP in South Stormont became evident due to changes in the economy and "significant development opportunities" in the municipality. In the AR, it is noted how "to the best of the writer's knowledge the CAO is the only internal candidate with the strategic planning training and knowledge to comprehensively plan, develop and carry out a community strategic planning exercise for internal and external stakeholders, and then write the strategic plan report." Council was in agreement that an external candidate be hired to develop "a strategic planning process using the services of an external facilitator."

More than hairstyling unprecedented time, nothing is more important than taking care of yourself. Self-care is not only important for your mental wellbeing but how you feel about yourself as a whole.

"Hairdressers are a wonderful breed. You work one-on-one with another human being, and the object is to make them feel so much better, and [at the end of it] to look at themselves with a twinkle in their eye," this quote from Vidal Sassoon nicely captures what Edith Landreville, owner/operator and stylist of Coiffure Fusion Hair Studio aspires to. Landreville believes that, through the pandemic, this has never been more true.

"I have not seen clients so down before: it's almost like I'm not only doing their hair right now, but I'm really one of the only other intimate human connections outside of their family and their bubble, that they are allowed to see. But it is worthwhile to see people leaving my salon, happier; not only for their hair but also feeling a little rejuvenated," she said.

She believes that what is most important to her is listening to a client's wants and trying her very best to replicate their vision.

"Hairstyling for me is about quality not quantity," she said. Landreville admits that she is a bit of a perfectionist, and while she takes her time with every client, at the end of the day the most important thing to her is that they are pleased with the result. The pandemic has slowed her business down but this has not discouraged her.

"I started my business in 2016. I was told it takes three to five years to have a viable business; and really for me, it did. Business had really picked up right before the pandemic hit." The pandemic could not have come at a worse time for a fledgling small business that was just getting its

Generous donation to Community Food Share

"It was difficult from one day to the next, but I budgeted the best I could, and made it work," she said.

She said, "When health regulations about reopening after lock-down began, things really changed." Her loss of revenue was one aspect of the pandemic crisis but she still had to budget for PPE.

"For the most part people bring their own masks but I still have to have some on-site for clients that forget," she said.

As Christmas is normally the busiest time of year for her, this year has not been

"Normally people want to look extra nice for Christmas, as they are attending various holiday events, but this year, people are just not rushing or needing to get their hair done," Landreville added.

How we socialize with each other has changed; and some people may feel that looking their best through the pandemic is not a priority as people have more pressing concerns.

"What I decided to do for the month of December, which I have not done since my first year in business is to offer a 15 per cent discount on colour services. This can include any number of colour techniques, from a full colour, highlights to a balayage."

As a sole proprietor, clients seem to like that she only has the one chair; never having any more than one person in her salon at a time. Clients not only have her full attention, but feel safe at the same time.

She has received many positive comments on her Facebook page and google. She welcomes new clients, and as she is by appointment only, she can usually work around client schedules.

Let's Start A New Tradition

This year, The Chesterville Record/Villager is asking you, our readers, to be part of our annual

Christmas Greetings' Supplement

We would like you to send in your favourite Christmas memory, whether it be drawings, poems, recipes, letters to Santa or anything related to the Christmas season.

In the past, we have reached out to area schools for children to submit to The Chesterville Record/Villager their drawings, letters to Santa, etc. Unfortunately, this year, we have to do things a little bit different due to the pandemic, however children are still encouraged to submit their Christmas themed artwork, poems and letters; we will be more than happy to include their creations in this year's Christmas Greetings' supplement.

From the very young to seniors, we want to read your Christmas stories and include them in the holiday supplement.

Help us start a new tradition!

Please send in your submissions by November 30th to:

Christmas@etceterapublications.ca or mail them to The Chesterville Record, Box 368, Chesterville, Ont., K0C 1H0.

You may also drop items off at our office at: 1 Mill St., Chesterville, Ont.

The Annual Christmas Greetings will be published on December 17th.

Have a cookie debate

Hello everyone,

Happy December everyone! It's time to get into the spirit of the holidays, just a bit differently than usual for this year!

Last week, RHS's iLead students learned so much about Metis culture with their Dot Art painting! Check out a sample of their beautiful artwork on the RHS Facebook

Did you know that the word "cookie" derives from the Dutch word "koekie" which, means "little cake"? Why is that important? Because today it is National Cookie day. Maybe a debate topic for today could be if crunchy or soft cookies are better? There are so many combinations and flavours of cookies that could be made. It's hard to mess up a cookie!

That's all for this week. Keep being safe and stay healthy!

Embrun community sets example

Ken and the staff at both Barry's Home Hardware and Embrun Home Hardware would like to thank everyone who visited our stores between Nov. 14 and Nov. 22 and donated to the "Good Neighbours Food Bank" drive we held. Thanks to your generous support, we were able to make a combined donation of $5,800 to help support our neighbours. Courtesy Photo
