North Dundas council tackles water allocations

Record News

WINCHESTER – The North Dundas Council discussed ways to move development forward without necessarily having the water and sewer capacity to deal with new growth at their Dec. 6 council meeting. The municipality has basically used up all of its water allocations and is in the process of deciding how to bring more water to Winchester and Chesterville.

Hunger Report 2022 shows need for people-centric thinking

Terry Tinkess Record Staff

MORRISBURG - A presentation at the Morrisburg Arena by Feed Ontario and Food Banks United focused on how the face of poverty is changing and how small rural communities have their own unique problems in trying to help people in need. Ashley Quan of Feed Ontario presented information contained in the organizations' 2022 report which is titled "Hunger Report 2022: The Deepening Cracks in Ontario's Economic Foundation" The report, released in November 2022 is based on input from the one hundred and forty direct member foodbanks and approximately 1,100 affiliated agencies that are part of Feed Ontario.

and say "Oh, that's the culprit," said Quan, "but as food banks know, people are less resilient than they were before. They can't weather these temporary economic storms, like a temporary job loss or rising food prices like they could previously. Food banks are for many people, an option of last resort after they've burned through other supports; savings, relying on family and friends, that sort of thing." There are several trends creating this situation. "Over the last 30-40 years employment in Ontario has moved away from those full-time jobs with benefits that are secure, into much more precarious, low paying work," said Quan. "There's a big shift in "gig work", things like Uber or DoorDash, that sort of thing. In Canada, nearly one in ten people engage in that sort of work now."

While the search for a way to increase the available water capacity of the municipality continues, staff has identified an issue with individuals or companies who have been granted a water allocation in the past but have not used it or may not be using it in the foreseeable future.

Allocations currently have a two-year life span, after which, if they are not used by a builder the council can be asked to extend them.

Water allocations

Consequently, someone who is ready to build a home for example but cannot get a water and sewer allocation because other builders are sitting on their own allocation is left out in the cold. North Dundas staff has been receiving questions and requests by builders and other organizations, whether they should be applying for water allocations even though there are none to be had.

The council is working on a process where they consider extensions to existing water allocations, and if they should be breaking down the different categories of allocations they have to deal with.

Mayor Fraser said, it is not as simple as extending an allocation permit for one house. Sometimes there will be complicated projects that will need some leeway given to them because of the shear size of their particular project.

A suggestion from the CAO was for council to make some decisions about what kind of growth they would like to see and if possible:

council how wants Winchester and Chesterville to grow and whether council wants to retain capacity for commercial/industrial growth and infill lots, as opposed to the first come, first served approach that was used in the initial allocations," she said.

For example: new residential development (subdivisions) not currently serviced: 60 per cent, residential intensification (infill) already serviced: 15 per cent. commercial/industrial: 20 per cent, and other, 5 per cent.

"No one ever expected we would have this deluge of requests two years ago. This caught us somewhat off guard. We anticipated two years ago that we had 20 years. Now we have to rethink and plan in a better fashion. Where will we want these allocations to go," said Fraser.

"It is an opportunity to refine our process."

At the meeting, CAO Angela Rutley had some suggestions about what the council should do about allocation incoming requests. Rutley explained that effective October 2022, all available water capacity was allocated.

"Council may wish to capacity was allocated in

As per section 7.4 of the bylaw, council may, in its sole discretion, grant a temporary exemption to the expiry where council deems appropriate, by resolution. Applicants must submit a request for a temporary exemption and the $200 fee."

Water capacity allocations expire two years after the date they are granted but there are exceptions; if a building permit has been issued that is connected to the water allocation or some kind of agreement has been made between the municipality and whoever is planning to build something, and they have already begun construction but have not finished by the time the allocation expiry date arrives, the allocation can be extended.

'If a building permit has been issued, the allocation shall expire in conjunction with the expiry of the building permit, which is a year after the building permit is granted, or longer if the building permit is renewed," said Rutley.

Council was presented with two options regarding how to move forward regarding expiring capacity.

The first one would be to have applicants that She said, "Most of the already have allocations that are about to expire, to been a steady stream of customers attending the event, with the vendors pleased with the turnout.

who have obtained an allocation have two years

'The time limit for the exemption is not defined in the bylaw, but given the current demand for capacity, the desire to create more housing and that applicants were already given two years to meet the requirement of obtaining a building permit, council might want to consider limiting the exemption to six months," said Rutley.

The second option is to not allow requests to extend past the expiry date. Instead applicants would have to re-apply for a new water allocation. If a new allocation is granted, then the applicant would have two years to get the ball rolling.

She suggested that the public be made aware of water capacity becoming available soon, as existing but not used allocations expire.

Now the timeline for applying for water allocations is from Dec. 12, with the first intake closing on Jan. 9, 2023.

IROQUOIS - A total of $39,000 was donated to local organizations in South Dundas by the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 370 in Iroquois. The cheques were presented to the organizations on Fri. Dec. 9 at the Iroquois Legion by Legion president Darlene Riddell. She explained the funds were raised through the collaboration of the Legion and the Legion Ladies Auxiliary through the sale of Nevada tickets and the Catch the Ace program.

George Davies received a cheque for $500, Seaway Valley Crimestoppers $1,000, South Dundas Christmas Exchange $2,500 and Community Foodshare $5,000. Carefor Health and Community Services in Cornwall and Dundas County Hospice in Williamsburg each received a cheque for $15,000.

"The donation was totally unexpected and couldn't have come at a better time," commented DCH board chair Arnold Scheerder, before mentioning how important this donation is to the organization. Dundas County Hospice provides clients with bereavement counselling, the loaning of medical equipment and supplies as well as caregiver support.

Sandy Collette, who accepted the donation to CHCS, explained the organization provides a variety of palliative care services including a 10-bed residential hospice, volunteers able to assist clients in their home, as well as bereavement counselling.

Bonnie McNairn from the South Dundas Christmas Exchange mentioned the organization provides food boxes, pyjamas, and toys in conjunction with the angel tree program. She mentioned there were over 150 children in need of gifts and pyjamas in the municipality.

Hunger Report

The result is that employment is less of a protection against poverty than in the past. There was a 47 per cent increase in the number of people with employment visiting food banks. "Even if people do have jobs, they are not protected against poverty the way that they were in the past," said Quan.

Because there are so many people engaged in precarious employment, they also don't have access to the same protection that an employee would. "When people lose jobs, supports like employment insurance that people rely on are less accessible than they used to be," said Quan. "Most people used to be able to turn to EI while they looked for another job, but in the year before the pandemic, less than a third of unemployed Ontarians were actually able to access EI, due to changes in the program and changes in how the job market works."

Affordable housing is also an issue across Ontario, but it has become a serious problem because of the pandemic. When people were able to work from home, many chose to move out of large urban centres to smaller communities where housing costs were lower. This in turn tightened the housing market even more, in some cases pushing people out of the market all together. Surprisingly, the largest rent increases since 2019 were outside the GTA.

According to Ouan, a solution to this would be social housing or geared to income housing, but unfortunately social housing builds have not kept up with population growth in Ontario." In the early 80s the new units relative to population growth were at seven per cent and now it is barely even on the chart," says Quan. "This means we have

The face of poverty in Ontario is changing and rural communities have their own unique challenges. Representatives from local food banks and Feed Ontario gathered recently to share information from their 2022 report and to try and bring the information they have gathered to the public. Present were from left: Ashley Quan, Feed Ontario, Cathy Ashby, House of Lazarus and Food Banks United, Bonnie Pidgeon Cougler, executive director of South Grenville Food Bank, Jane Schoones, Dundas & Stormont Community Food Share Lead, Lisa Duprau, Agape Centre, Cornwall and Joanne Mcintyre, Rideau Community Health Service. been falling further and further behind."

Feed Ontario has several recommendations for change, such as an increase in what is called "quality employment", said Quan. "One of the recommendations that we had was to look at gig work, which is a significant part of the economy now," he said. "Gig workers are actually not protected by the Employment Standards Act," said Quan. "They don't contribute to employment insurance or CPP, so they are not entitled to those benefits. Making those policy changes to protect them like any other employee would help them weather the storms a little bit better."

People in need in rural Ontario also face the additional hurdle of lack of public transportation. Jane Schoones is the team lead for Community Food Share, which serves clients in Dundas and Stormont counties. "The issue is that if you absolutely can't afford to rent, you have to find another place to live, and maybe you can't afford a vehicle," said Schoones. "We have a lot of people in Dundas and Stormont who don't have vehicles." As a result, they must rely on a friend or family member to drive them, which certainly isn't a long-term solution.

It is because there is such a pressing need and because they have so many things in common, several foodbanks joined together under the Food Banks United banner. Cathy Ashby is the executive director of House of Lazarus and chair of Food Banks United. The group was formed in 2018. "A few of us realized that we had more strength when we worked together instead of all of us trying to solve all of our communities' problems on our own," says Ashby. Their goal is to ensure that their clients have access to the same level of service as people in larger communities. "Our mission is working together to address poverty and make real change in our communities."

The Christmas Spirit is a present to be opened

Christmas has swung around once more. It's just about that time of year in the Christmas or so to go, we all take another look at our Christmas shopping list to

This week at Tagwi Secondary School, our warriors were busy. Tagwi hosted both the boys' and girls' ice hockey tournaments at the Finch Arena. The boys competed in the first meet on Tuesday. Then, the girls played in their first tournament of the season on Wednesday. On Thursday, members of the Tagwi community performed Christmas songs for senior citizens at the Winchester Golden Years Christmas Dinner. Finally, to close the week off, our senior and junior boys' basketball teams played in their second game of the season against l'Heritage.

On Tuesday, Tagwi's boys' ice hockey team competed in their first tournament of the season. They played the first game of the day against Charlan, and they managed to secure a 1-1 tie. Going into their next game against La Citadelle, our Warriors were definitely the underdogs of the match-up. The team battled through, playing a phenomenal game, and they ended up winning 3-1. Their final game of the day against Holy Trinity was grueling. Our Warriors fought hard, but the final score ended 5-2 for Holy Trinity.

Our girls' ice hockey team took off to Finch bright and early on Wednesday morning for their first games of the season. They first played Glengarry, where our girls won 1-0 in a very close match. Later in the day, our Warriors played their final game of the day against one of their toughest competitors, Holy Trinity. The girls fell 2-0 early in the first. After collecting themselves during the intermission, they made a small come back when Danika Canham scored the girls a short-handed goal. After a hard-fought second and third period, the girls ended up falling 3-1.

For the first time since the start of Covid, the Winchester Golden Years Society held their annual Christmas dinner. Olivia Versluis, Emily Conroy and Mr. McMullen had the pleasure of chatting with and entertaining a wonderful group of people, and they also got to enjoy a delicious meal - bonus!

This Friday, our boys' basketball teams played at L'Heritage in Cornwall. The seniors played the first game of the day. Not only were the boys short-handed, but they were also playing the top team. Despite all the of that, they kept their heads up, but ended up losing 81-29. Later in the day, the juniors played in a tight match. They managed to keep the score close the whole game, but ended up falling short by 4 points, 38-34.

As always, student council and the school season when with a week see if we are going to be able to make it or not.

> There are several steps to enjoying a successful Christmas, which unfortunately for many is the yearly challenge and stress of getting all of the items on their Christmas checklist completed.

> The advertisers at Christmas go all out reminding all of us, of all of the things we should be buying for each other.

There is a never-ending stream of Christmas presents suggestions that are enticing and exciting to say the least, and it seems our economy depends on a healthy flow of Christmas money from your pocket to some corporate money vault.

I am all for presents Christmas or otherwise but like any addiction they can get in the way of the original and real purpose of the Christmas season.

More than just a snapshot :

Dealing with cold and wet weather.

As far as winter goes, I'm a big fan of fall, but we do live in Canada and finding a way to enjoy the cold weather will help you keep a positive attitude until the warmer weather returns.

One thing to remember as you prepare to head out with your camera is that electronics do not function quite as well once the temperature drops. If you read the small print in your user guide, you'll discover that your camera has a temperature range where it works best. That doesn't mean it won't work at all, just that things may not work as quickly and at the same time, batteries will lose their power much faster. There are, however, things you can do to give your camera. equipment a bit of a boost. I always recommend having at least two batteries for your camera, and the cold weather makes that even more important. While you have your camera on a strap around your neck, you can keep the second battery inside your coat, where it will stay nice and warm and dry. When it is convenient, you can switch the battery in your coat with the one in your camera and keep on shooting. You will find as the original battery warms up inside your coat, it also seems to magically regain some of the lost power, allowing you feast on the story of the birth of Jesus or for those who do not have any kind of religious belief, they can look at the birth of a baby as a symbolic metaphor for a new beginning and a promise made from innocence.

Either way the season is an important moment for everyone if you can hear it and see it over the pile of wrapping paper on your dining room table.

I love Christmas and all that it represents and watching the commercialization of the season has always been entertaining.

Regardless of the monumental effort, large companies make every year to get us moving in the direction they would really like us to take, most of us are still able to maintain a little distance between that commercial world and our own simpler one.

It's not that toymakers and other manufactures are doing anything wrong, it's just that they are doing so many things right.

I suggest you all keep in mind the advertising around you to get hold of everything in the catalogue or your three year-old will be devastated, and at the same time keep some of that energy just for yourself.

Some critics of the commercial aspect of Christmas claim that the Christmas message will easily get lost in all of the shouting and pleading for Christmas presents.

But despite all of the years of technical advances in media advertising, and all of the millions of dollars spent in bringing that commercial message to you each year, there still remains a stubborn corner of the Christmas season that will always belong to you and your family.

It cannot be wrapped up in a box.

That personal space is where the Christmas Spirit lingers safe from everything else and oblivious to anything the commercial world can throw at it.

The commercialization of Christmas is not the work of evil marketers in far away places. They are just doing their job to get us interested in buying their products so they in turn can buy presents for their families.

No organization, toy manufacturer or cooperate giant has ever said you have to buy their particular product or else.

Choice is still the tool you have built into your head that no one can take away, and it's that ability that makes for a great Christmas as you celebrate opening those presents while choosing to remember the other meaning of the season.

It can be a religious celebration of hope and peace or a celebration of how we all arrive into the world as innocent as that fabled child in the stable.

to keep on shooting even longer. It also doesn't hurt if you can put your camera inside your coat from time to time to prevent it from becoming too cold

Another problem with cold weather is moisture. It might seem like a light dusting of snow is nothing to worry about but depending on the dust and moisture proofing your camera has, it could cause problems over time. Make sure to dry your camera off well when you're finished for the day; take the battery out for charging. If you have any of the small silica packets that come packed in just about everything, place them and your camera in an enclosed space; they will help to reduce the amount of moisture that may have found its way into your Moisture can also be a problem with your lenses. Going from a cold environment outside to a warm one inside will cause the lens to fog up and moisture to form on exposed surfaces. You can dry this off, but you can also put the lens in a Ziploc bag or even back in your camera bag before going back inside, to help slow down the temperature change; this will reduce the amount of moisture that will form.

come with dust and moisture protection, so you must take steps to keep things safe. There are, of course, a wide variety of rain and snow covers for your camera, but a Ziploc type bag will work just as well for a lot less money. You can cut a hole so the bag can slip over the front of the lens and have the larger open end for you to look through to see what your settings are and to use the live view function of vour camera. Winter can provide some of the most striking photo opportunities you will ever encounter and if you care for your equipment, it will give you the opportunity to capture the images you are after.

EOHU warns of the severity of the flu in young children

CORNWALL – As hospital admissions rise, the Eastern Ontario Health Unit (EOHU) is warning residents of the severity of flu infection in young children and reminding of the importance of the flu shot in protecting against the illness.

While the flu is a common seasonal illness, unlike the common cold, it can cause severe symptoms and complications. Local hospitals are currently seeing more cases of the flu and respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) than COVID-19, in both children and adults. Children under five are especially at risk of severe complications due to their developing immune systems and small airways. and pediatric hospitals in the area are seeing surges in critical admissions, with the majority being cases of the flu and RSV.

The flu shot is the best protection against the flu and is highly recommended for those who are at high risk of complications, especially children six months to five years old. The flu shot is available free of charge to anyone six months and older who lives, works, or attends school in Ontario.

receive the flu shot and are at an even higher risk of complications and severe illness requiring hospitalization. If you have a young child in your life, getting your flu shot is recommended as it can prevent you from getting and passing the flu onto them.

"Children have generally been spared the worst effects of COVID-19, but the flu is different. Sadly, the flu can be very dangerous for children, and this year it has been particularly severe and arrived earlier than usual," says Dr. Paul Roumeliotis, Medical Officer of Health at the EOHU. "Booking an appointment to get the flu shot for you and your child is one of the best things you can do to help keep them healthy and out of the hospital."

Other ways to help prevent the spread of illness include wearing a mask in crowded indoor public settings, washing your hands with soap and water or hand sanitizer often, disinfecting frequently touched surfaces, sneezing, and coughing into your elbow or sleeve, and staying home if you feel sick.

If your child has severe symptoms and illness from the flu, do not hesitate to seek medical attention, including going to your local emergency room.

The flu shot is available now through participating pharmacies and healthcare providers. The EOHU also offers the flu shot at its offices to children under five and their household members by appointment only. For more information on the flu and the flu shot, please visit EOHU.ca.

LONG SAULT - There were plenty of gift ideas for people to peruse during the Holiday Bazaar at Sunset Cove Retirement Living in Long Sault on Dec. 10.

People of all ages enjoyed their breakfast, visited with friends and neighbours, and waited for the arrival of the special guest - Santa Claus. He quietly arrived in the hall, standing in the doorway for a few moments, waving to people before making his way through the crowds, stopping here and there to visit with children and adults alike. After a few minutes he made his way to the bench at the front of the hall, where he was joined by children whispering their holiday wishes to him before having their photo taken with Santa and receiving a treat.

Guider Stephanie McLean explained participants went "door to door down Streeterpete and South Street" in Chesterville, with donations also able to be dropped off at the Nelson Laprade Centre in that community.

"The girls held the food drive because they want to be involved in their community. They know how important it is to support and help people in need," explained McLean, before continuing they had assisted in cleaning up the community garden at CHESTERVILLE - There was a good turnout for the 2022 annual meeting of the Dundas Soil & Crop Improvement Association held on Dec. 8 in the Chesterville Legion Hall. Included in the meeting were updates from the Ontario Soil and Crop Improvement Association, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Farm Association, Winchester Research Plots, a report on road and workplace safety, as well as a power point on the DSCIA bus trip earlier this year.

During the annual general meeting, Wray Holmes was elected president, Jason Byvelds as vice president, with Jessica Melenhorst serving as secretary-treasurer for 2023 and several new directors elected to the board of directors. Following a catered lunch, Kelvin Heppner provided an informative presentation on fertilizer emissions and the federal government's plan. The Innovative Farmer Award was presented to Glenn Smirle of Smirlholm Farms, for several achievements including the production of awardwinning honey. Sheila James received the DSCIA Award of FINCH - It was a cold and dark night on the streets of Finch, but there was plenty of warmth shown as people waited for the 2022 Finch Parade of Lights to begin on Dec. 10.

The floats gathered and were organized at Ted Moran & Son's yard on County Road 12, with the parade beginning with the honking of truck horns and emergency vehicle sirens as they made their way to County Road 43. As the sounds were heard, children stopped their games, while the older sat and waited patiently for the parade to grow closer. A small, decorated vehicle driven by first responders was used to stop traffic while the parade made its way. Holiday helpers handed out candy canes and donations for the food bank were accepted along the route. After the parade passed by, people made their way to the Finch Arena, where a visit with Santa, hot chocolate and treats and social time took place. Charity game raises $10,000

MORRISBURG – A charity hockey game between the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) and some of their law enforcement partners and former Morrisburg Junior "C" hockey players raised over $10,000 and collected 373 pounds of food for the Community Food Share and Seaway Valley Crime Stoppers.

The game was organized by Dale Lewis and Provincial Constable (PC) Eric Mantha. Lewis has been part of the Lion's organization for over 40 years, serving as part owner and trainer. PC Mantha is a former player. Lewis acted as general manager for the Jr. "C" team and coaxed several former players out of retirement. PC Mantha's team, the OPP Badgers, included members of the SD&G OPP Detachment, Cornwall Police Service, Akwesasne Mohawk Police Service, Municipality of South Dundas ByLaw Enforcement, and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The game was played at the Morrisburg arena, and a huge crowd showed up to support the two teams. The national anthem was performed by the Seaway District High School band and MP Eric Duncan, MPP Nolan Quinn and Inspector Marc Hemmerick conducted the ceremonial faceoff. Acting as master of ceremonies was South Dundas mayor, Jason Broad, who did double duty as the off-ice official. Greeting spectators and collecting food items for Community Food Share were the South Dundas U13 Rep and "B" house teams.

It was a big cheque, in more ways than one. A charity hockey game between the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) and their law enforcement partners and former members of the Morrisburg Lions Junior "C" Lions raised over $10,000 for Community Food Share and Seaway Valley Crime Stoppers. (L-r) Organizers Dale Lewis, Geraldine Fitzsimmons, Jane Schoones, Community Food Share, Provincial Constable John MacPherson, Provincial Constable Eric Mantha.

The referee for the game, Sean Boulerice, was recognized for his dedication Tinkess Photo to hockey and received a plaque and certificate of recognition. Boulerice has, for 42 years, officiated games from minor hockey up to and including the Ontario Hockey League. The presentation was made by Dale Lewis, Eric Duncan, and Nolan Quinn.

The combined efforts of the community led to an amazing afternoon and two very deserving charities receiving some well-needed funding. Many local businesses donated gift certificates, various prizes and cash that was used for a lottery raffle ticket draw. The organizers would like to thank all those who purchased raffled tickets as well as the following businesses and individuals who sponsored the event: Bill's Towing, McDougall Insurance & Financial, McIntosh Country Inn, Horner & Pietersma, Dean Cassell Roofing, Marsden & McLaughlin Funeral Homes, One Stop Skate Shop, Morrisburg Heating and Plumbing, Municipality of South Dundas, Morrisburg Canadian Tire, Morrisburg Ultramar, Laura's Valu-Mart, Morrisburg & District Lions Club, Sports Fix, Justin Elliot and Ron Skuce.

In the end, the former Jr. C Lions edged the OPP Badgers by a score of 5 to 4. Is there a possibility of a rematch? Only time will tell, but when you have two extremely competitive teams, neither one will take losing lightly. Fortunately, the big winners, regardless of the score were Seaway Valley Crime Stoppers and Community Food Share.

Christmas Party in Newington The Community Christmas Party is a long-standing tradition in the Newington area of South Stormont. The 2022 party was held on Dec. 10. Hosted by the Newington Firefighters Association, children of all ages can enjoy a tasty treat, facepainting by Breanna Beaudette and the opportunity to have a visit with Santa Claus and receive a toy. President of the NFA Ray Seguin explained there was a great turnout to the event, with donations of non-perishable food items being collected for the Osnabruck Food Drive, facilitated by the House of Lazarus. Members of the NFA joined Santa and volunteer Breanna Beaudette during a break in serving up some fun for visitors. Thompson Goddard Photo

Not a home for the holidays Terry Tinkess Record Staff

WINCHESTER – Zach Rumohr and Taylor Boisvert and their four children, Octavia, Marissa, Zoe, and Lincoln thought this was going to be a special Christmas. They had been selected earlier this year to be the family that would reside in the Habitat for Humanity home being built in Winchester Springs. Their plans however, came to an end early in October when they were informed that their application with Habitat for Humanity, Cornwall and the counties had been terminated.

"It was supposed to be a meeting, we had monthly meetings," said Rumohr.

Leigh Taggart, the executive director of Habitat for Humanity Cornwall and the counties was contacted by email and given a chance to comment on this situation but responded that she was unable to, citing the need to protect the privacy of the applicants.

Rumohr said, "That month's meeting was supposed to be about me going in and finishing off the remaining 27 hours at the store."

The 27 hours that Rumohr mentions refers to part of the agreement that exists between Habitat and their families requiring they put in 500 hours of "sweat equity" in lieu of a down payment on the home. According to Rumohr, he had completed all but 27 hours, and with the contract terminated, there was no compensation for the time he had put in.

"We had to sign off on that, it was the very first piece of paper we signed off on, and it said that if they do go this route, we would not be compensated for anything. That is a heavy topic with a lot of people, but we knew going in... we knew from the phone conversation before it broke [as] news. We'd known for a while that this is how it was."

Surprisingly Rumohr is relatively upbeat over the change in plans. "Honestly, we're a lot better now, we're living stress-free," said Rumohr. "We're actually part of the House of Lazarus program, and we're honestly doing pretty damn good. There was a lot of stress that was on us trying to get into that Habitat house. Now that it's done and over with, we can finally breathe a sigh of relief."

He said, "It sucked at first, don't get me wrong." Me and my wife were both pretty upset about it, and then we had to break the news to the kids." According to Rumohr he had no issue at all with the contractors. "The two contractors were unbelievably great. They answered your questions, they made you feel at ease with what was going on and how they were going about it at their end. It was great fun from that perspective."

The problem, he says, was in communication with Habitat. "In the office, there were too many hands in the pot. We would ask a question of one person who would deal with an event, and they would tell you one thing, and then we would get in trouble with another person because we weren't supposed to do that, even though we were told we were supposed to."

For their part, Rumohr, Boisvert and their children have moved on, both literally and figuratively. "We didn't agree with everything they were saying, and they didn't agree with everything we were saying, [and] that we were asking. What other way could it have [gone]?"

Absolutely delicious luncheon

There was a great turnout for the monthly hot luncheon held on Nov. 30 at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Chesterville. While enjoying a full course ham and scalloped potatoes' luncheon, people were able to visit and socialize in the church hall. Volunteer Maggie Curran explained the hot luncheon is held on the last Wednesday of the month, but there will be no hot luncheon in December. Record Staff

WILLIAMSBURG – There are few things that signify the holiday season than the sound of a choir singing beloved songs and carols, and that is exactly what could be found on Sunday afternoon at the Christian Reformed Church in Williamsburg, Ontario.

The music was provided by the Seaway Valley Singers, directed by Robert Jones, and accompanied by Margaret Whisselle, with Gerry Rosenquist as master ceremonies. The of production, entitled "Fa La La", featured an eclectic selection of music, ranging from traditional religious carols (Angels from the Realms of Glory) to more contemporary tunes such as Irving Berlin's White Christmas.

With songs about Christmas, Hannukah, and a traditional Quebec carol sung 'en Francais', there was something for just about everyone. Most tunes were performed by the choir, but there was a sprinkling of opportunities for the nearly 150 members of the audience to join in as well. Judging by the many smiling faces, if you weren't feeling the season when you walked in, you certainly were by the time you walked out.

The Seaway Valley Singers are a non-profit organization that was formed in 1993. Based in Williamsburg; their membership is made up of avid vocalists from the Seaway Valley. They welcome new members at the beginning of each fall and winter season. To learn more about them, you can visit their website at seawayvalleysingers.ca.

After enjoying a delicious dinner, members took part in trivia games, there was a silent auction, followed by holiday music to enjoy listening to or perhaps to sing along. The Lofty Nest is a spot like no other WINCHESTER - The Lofty Nest is more than a business venture. It serves as a home away from home; a jump off point to explore the region or a quiet place to catch your breath.

A stay at The Lofty Nest in Winchester can be whatever you want it to be.

Nanda Wubs took her passion, and vision of creating a great place to stay, and support the local North Dundas business community, and made it happen.

She remembers how back in 2020 she wanted to be involved in doing something creative, and also business related.

"I was not sure what that was to be," she said.

"Then I saw this little house for sale and I thought wouldn't it be fun to have this as an Airbnb. What a cute little house. "If it was ours, I would call it The Lofty Nest." The small home she had found for sale in Winchester was compact coming in at 435 square feet per floor and was built in 1910. It is a century home, one of the first homes in Winchester.

Nanda dreamed about purchasing the home and turning it into a successful Airbnb but hesitated, as she considered all the different aspects of the project if she chose to go after it.

"I was not sure if I should do this or not, and one day I was shopping in BMR in Winchester in their gift shop."

She saw a sign artfully done in their gift shop as she walked in that said, "Welcome to Our Nest." She took that as a sign and took the plunge.

She purchased the house in February of

"We were at a stand still," she said.

Nanda did all of the designing herself and a contractor brought her dream to life.

room area attached to a comfortable, and functional kitchen, with plenty of room for a table to dine at.

She describes The Lofty Nest as a tiny

The upstairs of the building is an open concept bedroom that becomes a quiet place to rest after a day of exploring the countryside, or just taking some time for yourself.

Nanda goes further than most in giving her guests a unique experience when they visit Winchester.

"I belong to the Eastern Ontario Agrifood Network as well, so what I have done recently is put up an online store to promote local food. The intention was for our guests while they are here to be able to find places to go to find local food.

It is like having an extension of the kitchen."

In the event a visitor wants something to do but does not want to go out but sit tight, she has included little craft kits and paint night kits.

"I hope to incorporate some travel itineraries from the area as well, just to enhance the experience for our guests," she explained.

"We get people here who come here just for the experience of staying at The Lofty Nest."

She said there are people from all over Ontario who view The Lofty Nest on the internet, love the idea of it and want to come for a visit.

The Airbnb is close to Cornwall, Chesterville, Morrisburg, Ottawa and Brockville. An easy drive gets you to where you want to go.

She said, "There are people who come, who just want a few days away from home in a nice place close by."

Nanda is a leading member of the North Dundas business community. She and her husband Richard sold one of their businesses, Wubs Transit in 2020, and focused their attention on their other businesses Precision Diesel and No Limits Auto Parts. Both are in Winchester.

Accident brings out the best in people

Joseph Morin

RUSSELL - Despite what many people believe about the world we all live in, there is more good in it than we realize.

Big and small acts of kindness and compassion float around touching those who need it most.

Losing a family dog or cat can be devastating.

When your dog dies in an accident right in front of your house, the grief of that moment runs through your family.

Last week the Guindon family's dog, Maggie was hit by a FedEx truck outside their home in Russell.

The driver of the delivery truck, Brandon Buma, originally from Chesterville, stopped and was as devastated as was Maggie's family. The day after the accident, Buma took the time to return to the Guindon home and give her family flowers and a card expressing his sympathy and concern.

Jill Guindon said in a Facebook post: "The FedEx driver who hit her stopped and was overcome - totally devastated (as we all were). It was no one's fault. Just a perfect storm of tragedy. Anyhow this morning Brandon (the Fedex driver) came to my door with [flowers and card]! In a crazy world - there's a lot of genuinely thoughtful and kind people around! Thank vou, Brandon!"

Last minute gift ideas in Russell

Carolyn Thompson Goddard

Record Staff

RUSSELL -The countdown to Christmas is on and for those still looking for gift ideas, the well-attended Russell Flea Market held on Dec. 10 had plenty of suggestions for holiday gift giving. Upon entering, vendor tables lined both sides of the hall and flowed into the nearby cafetorium of Russell High School.

There seemed to be an endless number of gift ideas, from handcrafted items to toys, games, jewelry and treats of all kinds. Shopping can certainly work up an appetite and there were several opportunities to purchase a bite to eat.

Over 50 vendors participated in the event with organizer Matthew Hiemstra explaining the market began in 2016 and has been growing ever since.

Stop Speeding in Russell campaign presents findings

Joseph Morin Record Staff

RUSSELL – Residents in the Village of Russell, concerned and frustrated with motorists speeding through their village have approached the Russell Council with the problem and possible solutions.

The Dec. 3 meeting of the council featured a presentation by Debra Bourne of a report from the Stop Speeding in Russell Campaign.

The report stated: "The volume and nature of traffic on Craig Street is a major safety and quality-of-life concern for Russell residents."

Bourne explained students at the Russell Public School use Craig Street in Russell to arrive at residents, which has indicated that most people spoken to have a very real concern about motorists speeding through the village.

The group has also had meetings with councillors and municipal staff.

The report stated: "Pedestrian crossing of Craig Street is very difficult and feels dangerous. Many sidewalks are quite close to very fast traffic (North side of Craig between Forced and Parklands). Some sections of Craig lack sidewalks. Many driveways are short and narrow with limited options for maneuvering.

Backing onto Craig Street into the fast traffic is not safe. The road is too narrow for safe cycling in many parts. Official and leave their school. The complaints have been traffic in the area is heavy lodged with the OPP, but its jurisdiction as a we feel enforcement will not be the answer. Craig Street is under the jurisdiction of the United Counties of Prescott -Russell (UCPR), where Russell is one voice of eight.

speeding. The average speed was 62 km/hr, and the 85th percentile speed was 76 km/hr."

Bourne did not just present complaints to the council. She came with solutions to some of the issues.

She said, "Russell Council should pass a resolution calling on the UCPR to adopt the following changes, and Mayor Leroux should push for these changes at the UCPR table:

a. Make Craig Street a 40 km zone permanently (it is currently only during school hours).

b. Create a Community Safety Zone along Craig Street. The Highway Traffic Act says, "The council of a municipality may by bylaw, designate a part of a highway under Plan: a. Before putting the plan to tender, council should engage in a public consultation. b. Additional traffic calming measures should be added to the plan where possible: bollards, visual reminders, bump outs, visual speeding reminders, sidewalk with curb safety near school, additional pedestrian crosswalk."

The presentation included several other solutions.

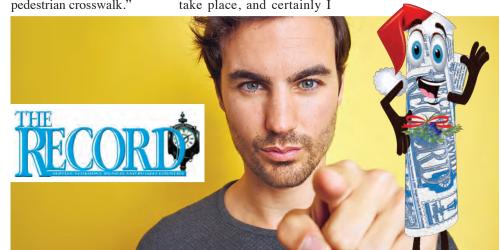

council The was receptive, interested and expressed their intention to follow through on the group's report.

Councillor Marc Lalonde said, "As someone who lives close to that corner, and I've been there for 40 years now, so I've gotten to watch the traffic and the growth, all of that take place, and certainly I share a number of the concerns."

He added, "We should take many of those concerns seriously. I think they are quite legitimate."

Mayor Pierre Leroux said the matter will probably come back up in January and he wanted staff to look into what the council could and could not do to alleviate some of the group's concerns.

The Great Turkey Bonspiel

"This is a major safety concern," she said.

Bourne said, "Craig Street is a Trucking Route -Heavy truck traffic shakes houses and has raised resident concerns over possible structural damage. Trucks are noisy and are disruptive to the feel of the village. Anecdotally, we have heard that truckers would prefer a route around the village."

A petition with 79 signatures asking for changes to village speed limits in some areas was also presented to council.

Campaign members have been busy. They have distributed 58 lawn signs and have had many conversations with

The full Stop Speeding in Russell Campaign presentation can be read on the Russell website.

The council was very receptive and sympatric to the presentation.

Bourne said, "We are aware of an official May 2021 speed study that was conducted at "CR-3 (Craig Street) West of Russell" (which we believe is near Tim Hortons). This study counted more than 54,000 vehicles. Eighty-five per cent of vehicles were community safety zone, if, in the council's opinion, public safety is of special concern on that part of the highway." We believe the presence of the school alone justifies this change. Community safety zones permit increased speeding fines as a deterrent. They are currently being used in the school zone along Concession.

c. School Zone Sign on the South Side of Craig Street - The sign is currently difficult to see.

Sign should be relocated to be more visible.

d. Photo Radar - UCPR should install photo radar in an effective location along Craig Street.
